Touch of Class

No matter what aspect of school we look at, and no matter which person we identify, each has their own special something that makes them unique. High school is the place to develop this "special something" and display our own individuality while also, being students of University City High School, we are continually forming a new "us" and, in the process, giving ourselves an aura of class and sophistication.

As sophomores, we leave junior high school behind and prepare for the new challenges and prospects we have heard so much about: dances, S.A.T.'s, football games, and college applications. As juniors, we see the future a bit clearer, but anxious as we are, we still cannot grasp it. And finally, as seniors, we get the long awaited chance to put our dreams into motion and make our futures happen. It is the year to make things happen for us and to bid farewell to that "special something"; that "spirit" that every U.C.H.S. student possesses.

As one walks down the halls of our school, there is a feeling of closeness that brings out school spirit in every U.C. student. This feeling is felt by all who step onto our campus, but it has never been named. There has never been just the right word to describe it. It's kind of like someone is touching you. A touch that produces not only school spirit, but a self-confidence as well. A touch that tells you, you are special. It's a touch of ... class. A Touch of Class! That is what the feeling produces!! It "touches" each student with spirit, confidence, and the knowledge that going to University City High School is something special.

16 Athletics

It seems like the Centurions, no matter what sport, just got better and better as our school became more prominent. Be it tennis, baseball, track, volleyball, swimming, football or any other sport, the Cents hit the field with the determination and aggression truly characteristic of Centurions. There were some record-breaking performances and some thrilling victories.

Clubs and 62 Organizations

What could be better than a group of people who share the same interests and work together as a school organization or campus club?

86 Seniors

They're the only students in the school who know the values and troubles of a full twelve years of school. They're the seniors, finding a way to rise out of the sea of SAT tests, college applications and essays to pack more spirit and good times into one year than in all the other eleven put together. They're admired and respected. They know full well that they're at the top.

Juniors 130

The junior year is one for getting ready and preparing for what lies ahead as a Senior. But who says you can't have fun while you prepare? From a junior class who outshouted the seniors came a degree of spirit uncharacteristic of juniors. It's hard to keep that spirit and enthusiasm going when you can't see the light at the end of the tunnel, but the juniors did just fine.

Contents

Sophomores 148

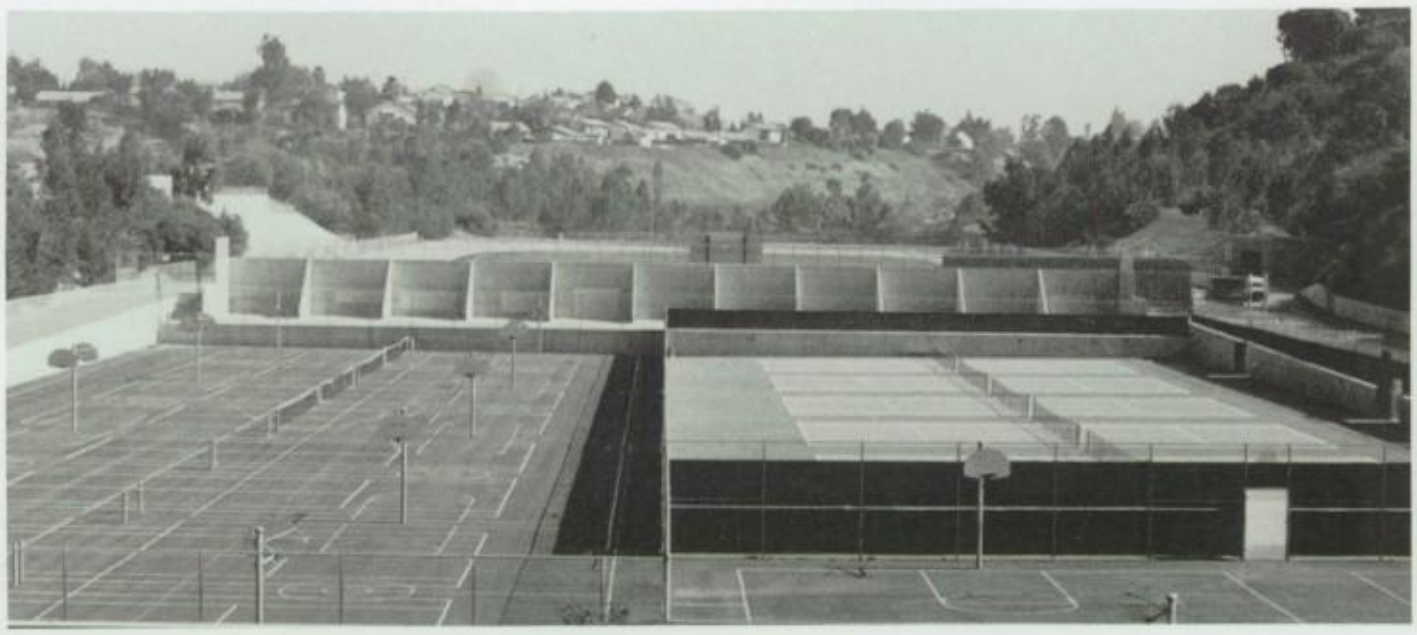
They're New! They're ready for anything! They're the biggest class ever to come to U.C. High! They're the Sophomores and with their size comes a proportionsal dose of excitement. High school is amazingly different from junior high, but the sophomores had no trouble at all adjusting to football games, pep rallies, and open lunches. Three years isn't far to go.

166 Staff

There is a force which acts on U.C. High. It is a force which is usually taken for granted. Without it, the school would cease to exist. It is the staff. The huge corps in the office, in the classrooms, and on the grounds are made up of people who are experts at what they do. Ready and able to meet challenges and keep the school rolling, our Staff is as big a part of U.C. as the students.

Student Life 186

No one can spend the whole day sitting in a class or doing homework. No one can and no one is expected to. At U.C. High the students have developed their own way of playing and relaxing. Be it at dances, dress-up days, spirit weeks of sporting events, there is an excellence to the quality of student life. There's nothing like it out of school so U.C. Students make the best of it.



The neverending lockers pause from bustling students under the canopy of "the cage."

From this viewpoint, sports memories are etched into the minds of UC athletes.

Take Pride

If it was up to the San Diego School District eight years ago, UCHS would not have been built. The statisticians' projections did not include enough of a population increase to warrant building a new school. Fortunately for us, the community demanded, so the school district built. So far, this incredible structure has held up and welcomed all.

The school's original plans called for classrooms next to the present mini theater, but budget cuts left a hole in its place. Even though there are no immediate plans for new construction, future students will see bungalows before 1996.

Part of the reason for the school's staggering increase is because of the reputation gained in just six years of existence. The academic achievement is significantly higher than the district average. UC is known throughout San Diego for superior soccer, softball, track, cross country, and football with tennis on its way.

UC's dominance is explained by principal Mary McNaughton: "I think that our excellence has been because of three reasons. The student body is motivated; the teachers are outstanding; we have great parent and community support. I have really enjoyed my first year here!"

I Feel the breeze of summer gently blow my hair
It brings the smell of roses
that begin to fill the air

Summer has arrived and with it came our love
It blossomed like the flowers in the sunshine from above.

It's the time for walking on the beach
from the dusk until the dawn
And the time for being happy
Cause the coldness has gone

So, maybe the sun won't always shine and maybe it will rain today
But one thing that we know for sure is that our love is here to stay

Spring Falls On Winter's Wing

Mathew Pearson

Spring falls on winter's wing; weather
Bows in death's colour and recedes
From Showers cleaning, politely
Clearing heather in — comatose
The icy void in wind fading.
Spring falls on winter's heart, pumping
Slowly, pumps now fast as spring bleeds
Out in four-step figure, brightly
Blinking into power, now close,
Now far, now promenading:
Spring falls in winter's stone, thumping,
Lifter now on born wing, feather
Spring falls on winter's wing; weather
Now turns again to face the sun.
Spring falls on winter's heart, pumping,
Pumping from a walk to quick run!

Don't Eat The Apples

A red and shining apple
That my mother packed for lunch
Take a good bite of it
And listen to the crunch.

The inside of the apple's sour
But don't let it go to waste
Think only of the polished red
And not the bitter taste.

I'll never eat another apple
Whether polished red or not
For it's the taste that really matters
And the apple's gone to rot.

The sea is hot yet calm,
And it shall remain this way all day long

Up from the depths comes Gigantic bubbles and up comes a huge traveler, with Many troubles.

He comes up strong from the ocean blue, but he is in a foreign land
A place in which he
Dosen't understand

He Turns away from me
And thinks of a simpler,
Calmer, easier life that was once his. I almost spoke to him
But I held myself back, for I knew of his feelings of Uncertainty.

He stands up tall, A Great traveler is he.
He has many new worlds
To explore, and in a way, so have I.

Sports: Common Bonds

The gun fires, the whistle blows, the buzzer sounds, the umpire yells, and the line judge calls. All sports have different officials just as they all have different rules but a few things they have in common are the opportunities, incentives, and the learning processes that resemble the "real world".

The athletic department gave students more incentive to get to school at 7:30 am. and work to keep their grades high. The possibilities of college scholarships weren't for academic over-achievers exclusively. Team members learned to set goals and work hard to attain them. Sports gave many the incentive to get involved and represent our school doing what they did best.

Although English teachers might have liked to think their class was the most interesting of the day, there wasn't a student on campus that would not have traded an hour of artificial lighting for an hour of authentic sunlight.

With all the competition for scholarships and even homecoming dates, sporting events gave a rare opportunity for students to learn to work together.

Tackling Obstacles

Raphael Wagner runs over the Serra defense for a Centurian first down.

"Excellent running backs, a sound offensive line, and a veteran defense." These according to Coach Vukojevich were the strong points that led the Centurions to success this year.

After taking Western League last year, the team strived for another successful season. Their faith and determination in each other held the team together and helped them to "tackle" any obstacles that came their way.

With veteran quarterback Brian Sexton leading the huddle, the team's experience unraveled with the consistent running style of Paul MacRenato, and the precision positioning of the offense. This setup proved successful as well as exciting to watch.

The defense was equally impressive with many returning stars. Seniors Matt Kelly and Rod Cowell were only some of the players who started off the season with an impressive number of interceptions. U.C.'s defensive line also proved successful with their ability to hold the opposing team to minimal yards.

The most notable thing about the team this year was the unity and determination that was put forth by all the players. Coach Vukojevich summed it up when he said, "We play as well as we can and don't worry about wins and losses, we try to be the best possible team we can and get the maximum out of it."

The right side of the offensive line, Mike Klessig and Brad Ledwith congratulate each other for a job well done.

"We've got the potential ..."

Analyzing his thoughts, sophomore Pete Myers relaxes during half-time.

Heading down field, Ernest Givens runs for maximum yards.

"We've got the potential to be the best, but you've got to work for it. It just won't happen." Those were Coach Yandall's words to a scraggely bunch of kids on August 29th. In the next few weeks that scraggely bunch was transformed into a team, the J.V. football team.

They worked together, all forty-five as one, to form the best team possible. Even though physically there could only be eleven players on the field at a time, mentally all of them were there. A team with all the talent in the world goes absolutely nowhere without the heart and desire to win. This year's team, if nothing else, had the heart and desire to win.

Overall, the J.V. football team had talent. They had the speed to move the ball and the size to make the blocks. This combination proved to be awesome.

Rookie quarterback Thad Hoffmeister proved to be a strong force at commanding the offense through many struggles. Ernest Givens also became apparent by breaking the school rushing record for J.V. running back. These strong points were only a few that could be noted about the team.

On the defensive side there were many strong points too. Outside linebacker Raphael Stewart had an exceptional number of quarterback sacks. Inside linebacker Peter Price was noted for his talent in filling the inside gaps. These players along with the entire defensive line were able to maintain a strong defense.

It was clear by mid-season that through hard work, that scraggely bunch of kids transformed into a fine team.

Optimistic Dedication

After the boy's soccer team lost some key players to graduation, Coach Viana was very optimistic about this season. With a team comprised of mostly juniors and sophomores, he felt they could do just as well, or even better.

This was tough to do considering U.C.'s boy's soccer team went to the C.I.F. final or semi-finals three of the last four years. With such an impressive record, Coach Viana attributed much of his success to, "a combination of players' dedication, their teamwork, and well-executed play strategies."

"I felt that they key to success was hustle, teamwork and conditioning!" Coach Viana exclaimed. His team ran sprints, jogged miles, and drilled daily to perfect their winning technique. They practiced all year long on that one play, that one piece of strategy that would put them over the top.

The Centurions are led by third year returnees, Armin Munevar and Deron Thorton on offense, while their league leading defense was compiled of Danny Demangos, Bill Castro, Jason Jonilonis and goalkeeper Pat Saeger, all third year players.

The team's positive attitude played as big a part of their success as the physical conditioning did. Most of the players have played on different clubs over the years, but Coach Viana has molded these players into one team through a winning attitude, "The fact that we can think of ourselves as winners has a tremendous influence as to how far we get!"

Justin Stockton plays the ball upfield to his forwards. Stockton played midfield in his junior year.

Armin Munevar executes a winning play. Munevar played a strong role on the team for three years.

Classic Force

The celebration begins for Sally Weigand, Liz Hawkins, and Tracy Jones — victory!

Right wing Susie Stutzer drives past her opponents' fullback.

The shouts from the stands matched the intense excitement on the field of girls' soccer. The enthusiasm was no coincidence because the quick, agile moves and impossible goals left the fans no alternative except to participate in the action.

Within the past two decades, soccer has become a favorite American pastime. The trend has carried through to the Centurion hearts, especially after taking Western League just three years ago. The interest in this year's varsity team multiplied as the season wore on and the chances for another trophy increased.

The onslaught of new Freshmen and Sophomores combined with the experience of the Juniors and Seniors to form an intricate machine. The offensive force led by Sonia Munevar, Sally Weigand, Liz Hawkins, and Susie Stutzer, used their quick feet to outwit their opponents to kick and head the ball for goal after goal. The defensive unit led by Natalie Hurlburt and Michelle Ogata, backed up by goalie Hillary Beeh or Megan Calders, kept the ball a safe distance from their own goal.

From the beginning of the season, the girls showed that team-like unity of success. The strength lay in the cohesion of the offensive and defensive units. As assistant coach Ray Weigand explained, "The girls were trained to move the ball by working the wings and crossing to score." The inpenetrable defense often left the goalie with nothing to do. Coach Coons summed up girls' soccer best: "We're just awesome!"

Looking strong, sophomore Sonja Munevar works to outdo a shadow-like opponent.

Sally Weigand sets up before sending the ball into the goal, far above the goalie's head.

Cesar Cedillo rifles a fast ball against rival Clairemont.

"Here is a dollar." "Caramel or Krunch?" "Krunch!", "Thank you." Sound familiar? This scenario of trading dollar bills for candy bars often took place during the month of March. The annual candy bar sale launched the start of a new baseball season and this year, the Centurions were looking for a season as sweet as their candy bars.

Before this summer, Coach Lamotte envisioned U.C. High in the CIF Playoffs. "We have the offense and experience to win a lot of ball games," declared the coach. The experience was due to eight returning position players while twelve of the sixteen players had a year of summer league under their belt.

With all these 'veterans' Coach Lamotte expected at least second place in the Western league and perhaps first place if San Diego county powerhouse Mission Bay faltered. The past three seasons U.C. has been in the hunt for its unprecedented first Western league banner in baseball. "We have the ability to score runs and have vastly improved our defense from a year ago," states their confident coach.

Coach Lamotte knows that even his 'veterans' needed practice. Everyday, the players practiced bunting, hitting, and fielding. Other days the team played against each other using the pitching machine, getting as close to game situations as possible.

With all these pluses in favor of the Centurion baseball team, a good season was expected and a great season was anticipated.

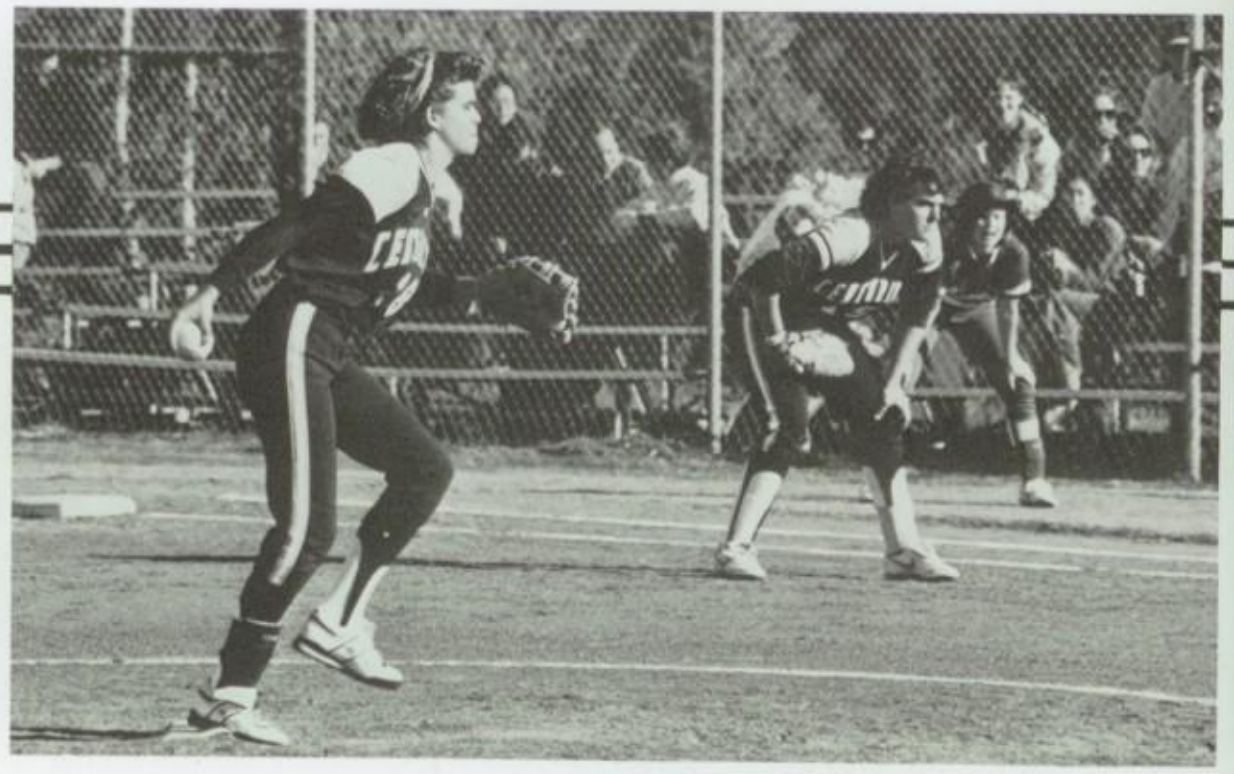
Balance of Power

With the runner nowhere in sight, sure-handed, Genney Banet, catches an easy out.

Sara Ahern lets loose her 62 mile-per-hour fastball.



Opening game. The bottom of the fifth. Bases loaded, the crowd — silent. Sonia Munevar drove the ball past first base; a single stretched to a double, sending Mary Emerick and Kathy Malowney home. This first rally set the pace for the rest of the game as U.C. smashed Crawford (8-0). This victory over last year's CIF finalist was no surprise as the girl's Varsity Softball team was fired up from day one of practice.

Ardent and alert, the girls felt confident for a geat season. "We're a good all-around team," declared rookie, Corie Shankles. "We can all play more than one position. The versatility made for a stronger team; with eight returnees the squad also had a unique balance between new and seasoned players.

The new mixture turned out a forceful hitting team comparable to the field. Power hitter, Hillary Beeh, explained her strategy: "The trick is to watch the ball from the time that it leaves the pitcher's hand. If it's a good pitch, give it all you've got!"

While hitting scored the runs, shutting down the opponent was just as important. Pitcher, Sara Ahern, gave away the defensive secret: "When I pitch, all of the girls are ready. They want the ball."

After losing to Christian last year in the finals, the girls were determined to claim the title as CIF Champions in 1987.

Shortstop, Kathy Malowney, lunges to tag out a Torey Pines runner at second base.

Corie Shankles faces a 2 and 2 pitch. Speed sets her high in the batting order.

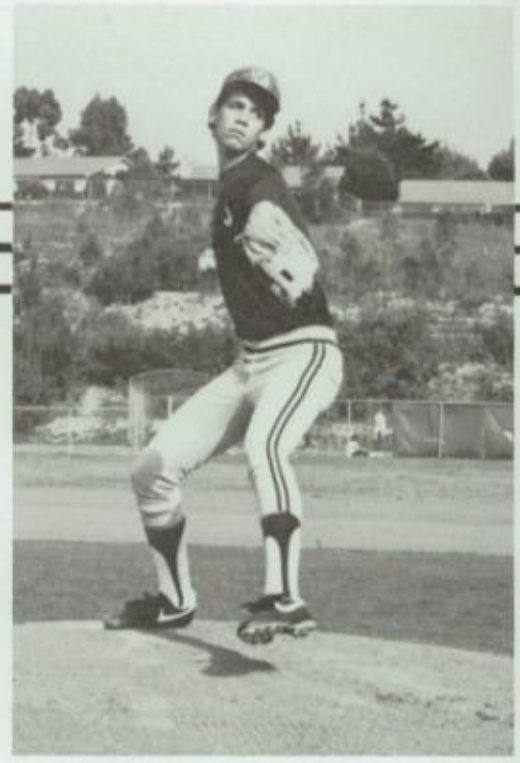
Highlighting Strengths

With the game on the line, catcher Scott Cohen calms down the pitcher Chad Hall in the bottom of the seventh.

Concentration is the main element for success, as Scott Cohen awaits the pitch.

Jeff Sevier barrels in another infamous fastball.



With four returning players and an incoming crew of "more versatile, better rounded athletes," according to coach Ron Morgan, the junior varsity baseball team began the season with high hopes. Returning player Chad Hall remarked, "We're going to try to win Western league, and have a good, overall winning record." Coach Morgan had similar ideas, "We're trying to finish in the top three in Western league, but I'm also trying to play everyone on an equal basis. The most important thing is for the team to have fun."

A record of 2:2:1 started out the season as the group strove to highlight strengths and rid themselves of weaknesses. Team member Steve Calvao felt the strengths of the team included "the coaching, and the attitude of the other players." Besides a few crucial mistakes which cost the team a couple of early games, U.C.'s J.V. baseball team remained undaunted, with a sense of teamwork. "They kid each other around, but only in a positive frame of mind," claimed coach Morgan.

Immediate goals of the team included "better mental playing" observed Hall. With teamwork and great coaching, the J.V. baseball team was off to a great start.

Freshman pitcher, Stephanie Cruickshank fires another strike.

Devastating Line-Up

The 1987 Junior Varsity Softball team came into this season with a devastating victory. Their 31-2 defeat over Torey Pines gave them a strong start to yet another great year of softball. Coach, Tom Medigovich, admitted it would be difficult to equal the team's impressive history, but he was still very optimistic.

Keeping the team together is what Coach Medigovich relied on for a successful year. He commented this was fairly easy to do considering, "the girls, themselves, worked hard, supported each other and had a lot of fun!"

With the team's mental attitudes taken care of, Coach Medigovich attacked their weak areas in actual game play. Coach defeated these problems with intense practice and by constantly showing them what to do when certain situations occurred.

Carmen Paea explained the difficult aspects of being on the team. Because this was a Junior Varsity team, there was no CIF competitions or MVP's or even a Western League championship to strive for. A lot of the glory was taken away. But what kept them going was, as Carmen said, "the pride you held for your school and you. A lot of the work was done for yourself."

Love For the Game

Apparently trapped by three Saints, Murray Peller sneaks through the defense.

Though it looks like a dance, Durrell Sims, Alan Peller and Scott Mobley perform a zone defense which confuses the St. Augustine Saints.

"Let's be active! Men let's go!" Coach Tom Medigovich encouraged the UCHS varsity basketball team on to victory. This years team was victorious over many of their opponents. The Centurions were competitive with many long time rivals including, La Jolla, University, and Christian. Besides winning more games than in recent years the Centurions also placed high in tournaments. The Centurions competed in the Kiwanis Tournament over the winter break and placed sixth out of eighteen teams — a great improvement from last year.

In order to boost attendance the idea of a basketball homecoming came about. The game was on February sixth. The Centurions competed against the La Jolla Vikings. Before the game the cheerleaders held a pep rally to gain spirit and cheer our team onto victory.

This years varsity basketball team consisted of many new, young players, a building team which became more and more experienced throughout the season. In tradition to promote the days game, each player wore a tie. Coach Tom Medigiovich and assistant coach Mack Parker's challenge of overcoming previous basketball records was made easy with this young, energetic, and promising young team. The hopes for the future are that the UCHS varisty boys basketball team will never have to lose games by twenty and thirty points again. The 1986-87 varsity boys basketball team showed good physical characteristics, speed, agility, and most of all a great love for the game.

Congratulations Centurions on a job well done.

Dribbling Debut

Junior Staci Ball brings the ball down the court during the Kiwanis Tournament. Staci played right forward.

Jennifer Rozsa dribbles past a Grossmont defender. Jennifer is only a sophomore so she will hopefully be with the team for two more years.

Considering U.C.'s past status as a Girls Varsity Basketball team, you could say they did average. As U.C. High's history shows, the girls have had quite a struggle every year. Oh, there was effort and hard work, it was just the inexperience that hurt them. Not many girls have played basketball for a long time, when compared to girls and boys who have played other sports like soccer their whole life.

Coach Vukojevich coached the team this year for the first time. He has worked with J.V. boys basketball and Varsity football, but this was his first experience at coaching girls. He seemed to have enjoyed this change, and said he found it quite pleasurable.

"We're very inexperienced and have a long way to go to be exceptionally good, but we're working hard and improving." These were Coach V.'s words when he was interviewed shortly after the unsuccessful Kiwanis Tournament. He also stated that he was pleased with the size of the team, using Monica Sims at 5'11" at center.

The team's goals in the eyes of Coach V. and the team were to be the most competitive they could, and they were. As far as the future is concerned, it seems that as the team gets more experience, they will evolve into a stronger group of girls.

Monica Sims puts it in for two. She played the important position of center for the Centurions.

Joanne Dabbert squares off and shoots from outside the key for a valuable two points.

Neshell Gregory takes control of the ball while the rest of the Centurions set up for an offensive drive.

Working Well Together

Junior Dave Beck breaks down-court for two points.

D.J. Harmeling displays the perfect arc while attempting a three-point play.

The J.V. Boys Basketball team had a new coach, only two returning players, and no real height to speak of, yet they surprised everyone with a quite respectable ranking.

Going into the season they had two goals. The first was to place respectably in their league, and the second was to simply have fun in doing so. They achieved both goals by working well together.

Working well together came easily because many of the players have had opportunities to play together on previous teams. Both the Standley 8th and 9th grade basketball teams were two such teams providing excellent training that helped to make the boys J.V. team what it was.

D.J. Harmeling and Billy Reid, the two co-captains, were there to pull the team together in clutch situations, but otherwise the team performed as a unit. As a general rule everyone got a chance to play in every game which kept players happy and team morale high.

Like all J.V. teams, their purpose was to prepare as many players for the varsity level as possible. Coach Morgan felt that he and his assistant Coach Yandall had some players that will benefit the varsity in the future.

FIRST ROW: T. Lane, R. Stewart, A. Hartin, B. Reid, J. McCreary, J. Oldach, D. Beck, S. Peller. SECOND ROW: Coach Yandall, D. Harmeling, C. Hall, T. Hoffmeister, T. Loomer, T. Smith, S. Calvao, J. Ball, Coach Morgan.

"Next group on the line!" yells junior varsity coach Platt. "Begin." At this point three players do what is called 'suicide.' This is an exercise in which the person runs to each line on the basketball court and returns to the starting point after touching each line. This is just one of the many exercises the girls do in preparation of making them better players.

Along with suicides, the players also practice free throws, sprints and other skills which are necessary in developing a team. Often, they scrimmage against the varsity team. "It's no small order, but it makes the girls play stronger and with determination," states coach Platt.

Though junior varsity teams don't get the recognition of the varsity, this team did not seem to mind. "They're out there to play as hard and as well as they know how."

The team was made up mostly of sophomores but had a few juniors and freshman. "My job is to prepare these girls for the varsity level; junior varsity allows some of the players more playing time that they would get if on the varsity squad."

With the preparation of Coach Platt and the hard work the girls put in during practice it was inevitable the team was bound for another respectable record. Led by Coach Platt, this teams determination was a quality that gave them the right touch for a fine season.

Breaking Records

Captain Mike Nemeth stretches out before a meet in which he displaces four of the top La Jolla runners.

In the toughest race of the year, Mike Nemeth, Mike Griffin, Craig Newman, and Richard Martin surround and intimidate the La Jolla runners.

The 1986 Cross Country season was marked by the singularly best improvement of any Cross Country team in U.C.'s history. By mid season, Coach Rick Mitchell was convinced that the team was better than the team of three years ago that had won C.I.F. Coach Mitchell was not the only one convinced of the teams ability as the team was invited to the Eagle Invitational, a meet reserved for the ten top teams in Southern California.

"Mentally, this is the strongest team we've ever had," Coach Mitchell admitted. This was shown by the team's great determination and hard work at practice. The team knew, however, that Cross Country was not an entirely mental sport.

Running an average of six miles every day, the team built stamina and speed. This allowed many varsity runners to complete the grueling, 3.2 mile Morley Field course in 16 to 17 minutes.

The Junior Varsity was also strong with many new runners taking minutes off of their times as the season progressed. The J.V. team had lost only twice over the past five years.

The seasons most exciting moment came when top varsity runner, Jason Salber beat the highly favored La Jolla runner in the time of 16:02, the fastest ever by a U.C. Athlete.

With a seriousness and determination not exhibited by previous teams the '86 Cross Country Team positioned themselves at the starting line and took off.

Jacob Glezer psychs himself out. Mental preparation is just as important as stretching out.

Jason Salber is congratulated after breaking the school record.

Setting the Pace

Kitrina Shafer, Leah Salo, and Sarah Jetton keep their spirits high as the race dwindles down to the final moments.

Charlene Hanna focuses on another victory for U.C.

Captain Mielle Schwartz plans the team strategy for the La Jolla meet.

Pumped, determined, psyched — the Girl's Cross Country team conquered Morley Field week after week. Shin splints, hip and knee injuries plagued the girls throughout the season, but they stuck to it and worked the two to five mile workouts during each week. With the addition of one half of a mile to the already challenging 2.1 mile course, the increase was not an obstacle but just another challenge to overcome.

The secret of this year's team lay in its unity. "We have a lot of runners who run right in a big group. That makes the team really, really strong," noted junior Mary Grossman. Juniors Alison Maxwell and Corie Shankles did help to set the pace, though, by consistently finishing in top spots.

With 18 returnies, the varsity runners knew their strength. With 18 juniors running, next year's team also promises to be larger and stronger.

Many students would rather participate in sports that depend on team effort and that don't require action 100% of the time, but Cross Country puts the runner against herself with only discipline and self-control as guides: The runner is responsible for her own victory or defeat.

Why run? Team captain Mielle Schwartz explains, "Because it feels so good after you're done. It's a real accomplishment even though you hate it while you do it."

Tracy Jones and Leslie Young leave the pack to take charge of the second mile.

Centurion spirit keeps the adrenalin flowing through U.C.'s star runner, Allison Maxwell.

Enduring Efforts

Mike Griffin leads the field into the brutal second lap of the 800.

Craig Toerien and Steve Liebreich get a good jump off against Morse.

At the sound of the gun each individual ran to his ability, reaching for that personal goal and helping to win his event for the school. Track and field is a sport in which one can compete as an individual and contribute to a team at the same time. Several coaches led team members in developing their skills in sixteen different events. Each event contributes to a final school score to decide the outcome of each meet.

Coach Rick Mitchell led the organization of the meets with supporting coaches — Nick Ciaccio for sprints, John Hutzel took care of the shot put and discus, Coach Levan trained the distance runners and Coach Thompson also trained the field events.

The members work out 2-3 hours a day starting with traditional stretching and jumping jacks, then they break up into their individual events where they received advice and instruction on the fundamentals from their coaches.

Coach Mitchell explained, "We have different strengths and weaknesses from last year's team, yet I hope our team comes out in the top three in our league." The individuals that performed exceptionally well this year was Tim Loomer in the high jump, Craig Toerien in sprints, Paul MacRenato in the discus and Greg Cleveland in the shot put. These strong leaders counterbalance the track team's weaknesses and put them in good shape in the race for league championship.

David Graner flies over the bar and into third place against Point Loma.

It's down to the wire as Jason Salber and Mike Nemeth battle for first place in the mile.

Classic Strategy

Joann Dabbert literally throws herself into her event.

Stephanie Williams and Carolyn Wells break from the blocks.

Every day, the girls track team could be seen warming up and practicing on the field. Nothing was unusual about this to the casual observer but it was all part of a classic strategy employed by the coaches: team work. It consisted of team warm ups, team laps around the track and should anyone be late, there were extra laps to do. Team unity was stressed and the plan seemed to work. Senior Krissy Jennings commented, "It gives the team more spirit and makes us try harder." Many members shared that same attitude.

The team, which was not as strong as last year's when the girls won the title of Western League champions, was optimistic about the season. Returning highjumpers Joann Dabbert and Viviana Waisman were assets to the team, along with hurdler Stephanie Williams, who was considered one of the best in the county. Runners Dawn Dempsey, Beth Williams, Mielle Schwartz and Amy Messersmith helped boost the long distance team.

The girls track team, which was young with many freshmen and sophomores, concentrated on team work and unity. Because of this strategy, the girls kept an optimistic outlook throughout the season.

Michelle Ogata takes off at the sound of the gun in the 200 meters.

Michelle Hunter cools down after crossing the finish in the mile relay.

Viviana Waisman takes a practice leap into the triple-jump pit.

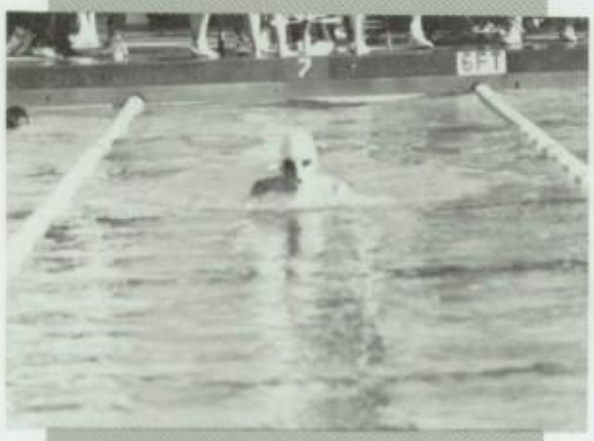
Winning Waves



Greg Queen leads the 100 yard breaststroke into its third leg.

Steve Long kicks up quite a splash with his powerful butterfly.

With the strength of a new coach and the continuing energy of last year's team, the swim team came even closer to gaining the Western League title. Coach Jeff Milton pushed the team in practices to reach its highest potential and it was worth it.

Many factors added to the good fortune of this year's team. The coaching, for instance, was intense. Assistant coach Dave Pais caught on quickly to Milton's style and learned a lot about the sport. The returning Swim San Diego swimmers were a big help to both the boys and girls team. Finally, people who liked to swim were an added bonus in helping the team win.

The girls team remained strong with powerful swimmers like Alison Maxwell, Caroline Safar, and Aimee Edinger. "I think we have a legitimate chance to be in the top three [in CIF]" affirmed Coach Milton about the girls team.

The boys team was solid against teams like Coronado and La Jolla. With the force of Blair Hall, Tim Trapnell, and Steve Long, Milton hoped to qualify the boys team in at least one or two relays in CIF.

Altogether, the swimmers used their strength and desire to win to bring them closer together as a team. Coach Milton was excited about the team and knew the team would rise in the future.

David Bridges explodes from the block to take an early lead in the 100 yard backstroke.

Junior, Alison Maxwell, cruises in for an easy victory in the varsity girls 100 yard backstroke.

Joe Kurland, a junior, is mentally and physically ready to take on the competition in the 50 yard freestyle.

Aces High

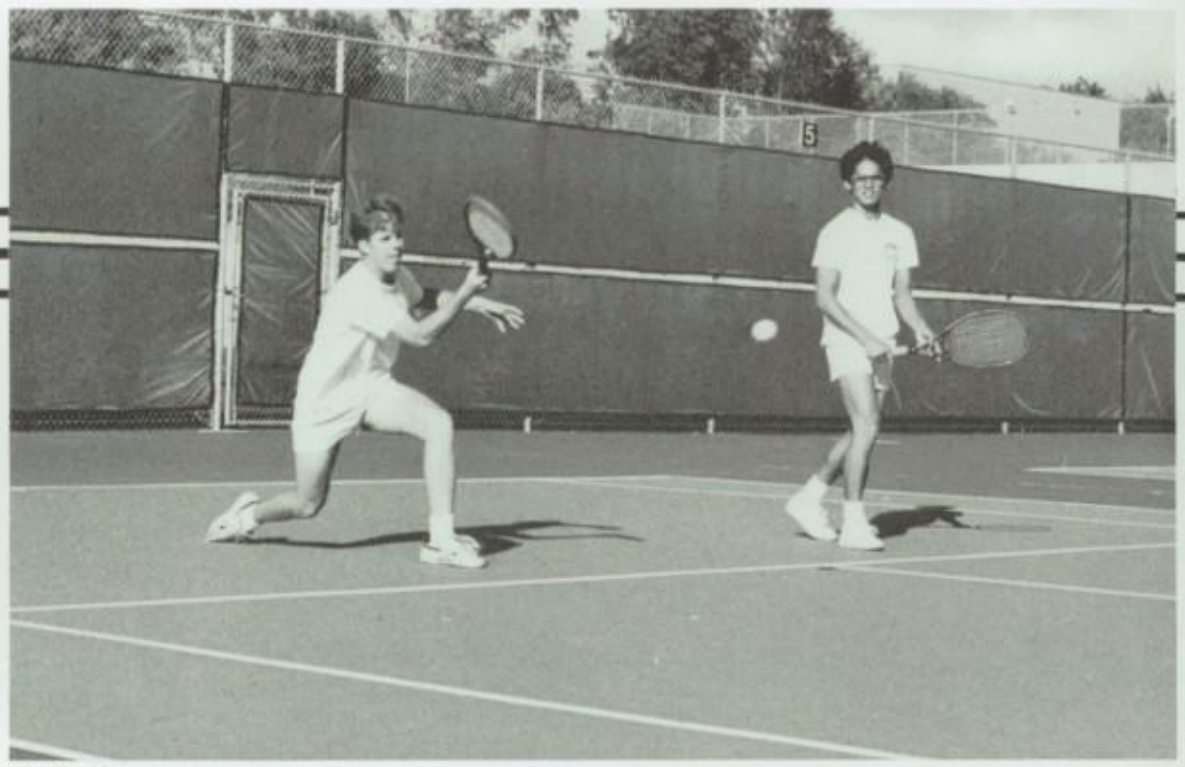
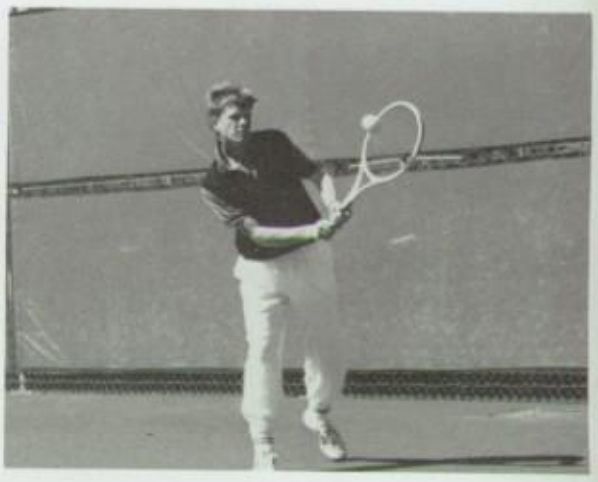
Co-Captains, Brian Andrews and Khanh Tran, in a match against Madison.



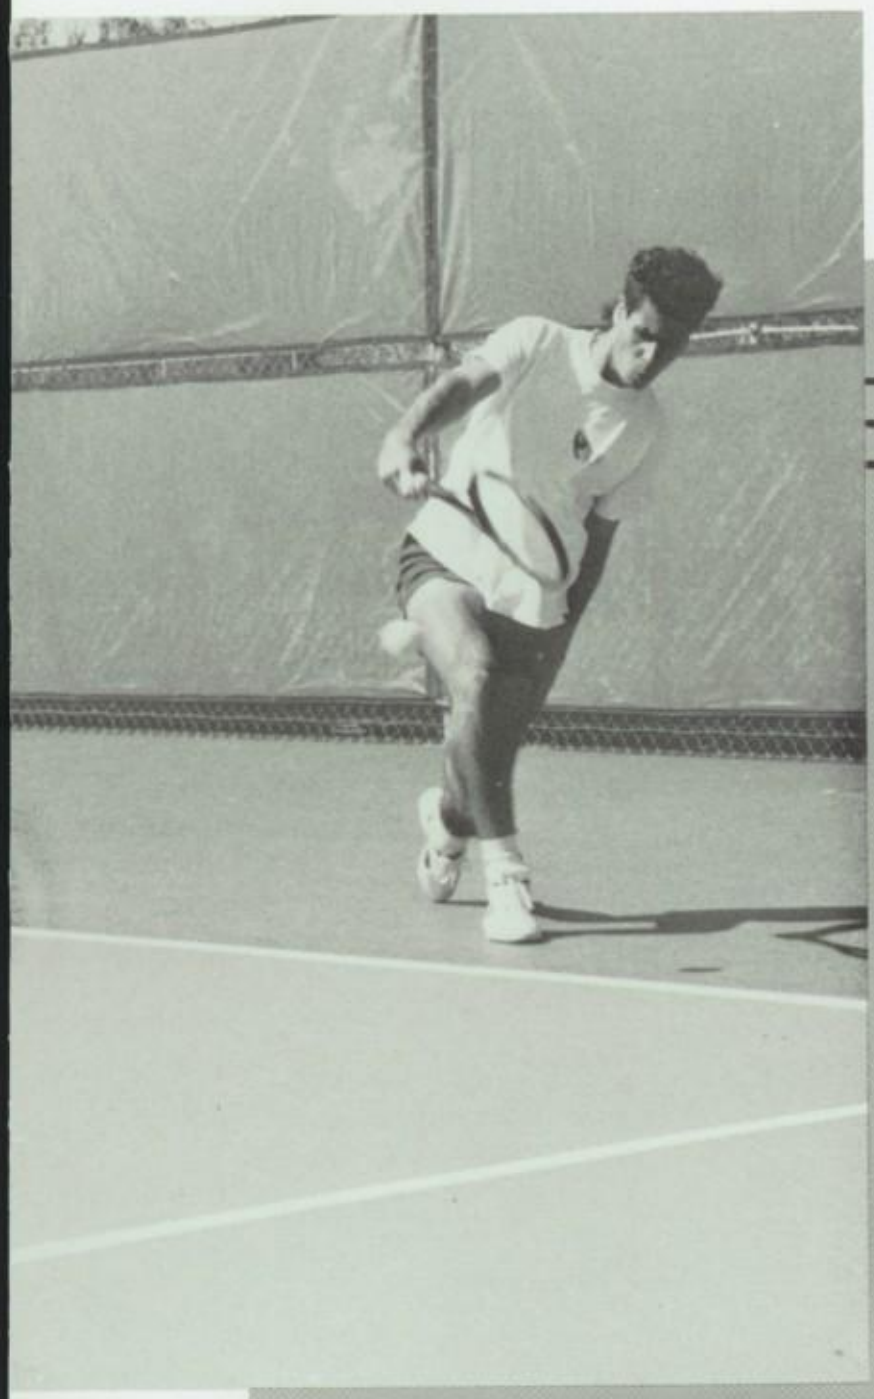
"30-Love," yelled one U.C. tennis player during the tournament at Bishops. This was one of the opening matches of the season. Co-captains this year, Khanh Tran and Brian Andrews, were both returning seniors and highly experienced players. When asked how the team looked this year, Tran replied, "The returning players are strong and the new players have promising talent."

The team was hoping for another semifinal placement in CIF playoffs. Before the season began, Coach Rubens felt the team, "had a good chance even though we lost four top players from last year." "Two of the strongest returning players were Wayne Shyu and Karsten Heimburger, and two promising new players were Yuichi Tamano and Jen-I Sun. This year's team benefited from good leadership and attitudes. The boys practiced three hours everyday for perfection. This was a team that was not widely viewed, yet deserved recognition. Senior Steve Uhlir played his first year on a high school team and felt it was "a great experience."



Karsten Heimburger slices the ball.

Jen-I Sun smashes a winning shot down the line.



Lashing a back-hand across court is Ron Mor.

A Classic Match

Second seeded, Rosmarie Forbes lunges for the ball with a backhand.

"Hurry up and serve the ball" mutters Brandi Fabian.

Top ranked Mimi Burgos, powers a backhand down the line.

With a continuing tradition of Oreos and Carribean Cooler Crystal Lite, the girls tennis team built their stamina to produce a stronger unit which led them to many victories. Besides this grueling diet, the girls spent hours practicing backhands, forehands, serves, and slices. The Centurions shared the title of Western League Champions with the La Jolla Vikings, and the Bishops' Knights. In addition this team scored more games from the top teams in their league than ever before. Long time rivals La Jolla and Bishops' tennis teams had to do more than just wave their racquets to compete with these talented girls. Their success was largely due to the many gifted players on the team, which consisted of nine returning and five new players. With this mix, this years tennis team had more than its share of excellent players. Some that became known to us all were Rosemarie Forbes, Viviana Waisman, Mimi Burgos, and Amy Marks. Also contributing to the success of this team were the minimal injuries suffered by the girls. Their confidence was not damaged when they suffered early losses to La Jolla and Bishops. The girls team battled back and eventually won the title of Western League champions, which they shared with La Jolla and Bishops. At the CIF finals, Mimi Burgos walked away with as the singles champion. As usual the UCHS tennis team made great strides and finished at the top.

Jennifer Rozsa and Naomi Hotta await the serve from the opposing team.

A Long Shot

In deep concentration, Greg McKee plans for his next shot.

Hitting a bucket of golf balls everyday sound boring? "It does, and it is!" Exclaimed Coach Ed Yandall. Golf, to others, probably seemed to be an easy and a nonexhausting sport. Until the first time you picked up a golf club, you are unable to realize that it is a game of frustrations, challenges, and probably the most difficult sport to master. Golf is a game that demands extreme patience, concentration, dedication, talent, time, and a total commitment from each individual on the team.

Competitions this year were very fierce due to the evenly balanced players who scored in the mid forties "I would be very happy if we end up third or fourth in our league this year. I hope to qualify a minimum of one or two players for the California Interscholastic Federation, then I would consider it a successful year," Coach Ed Yandall said. Third year player, Joe Schaefer, and a junior, Robby Johnson, had the potential of scoring from low forties to high thirties.

Although golf is an individual sport, the University City High golf team worked well together producing a united effort. Together the golf team strove to achieve a winning season. Though it was considered a long shot, they put forth the effort necessary to attain their goals as a contender in the Western League.

With an experienced eye, John McCreary considers the situation before his turn.

In perfect form, Spencer Olson swings on the fourteenth hole.

Vidisick, Coach Pais.

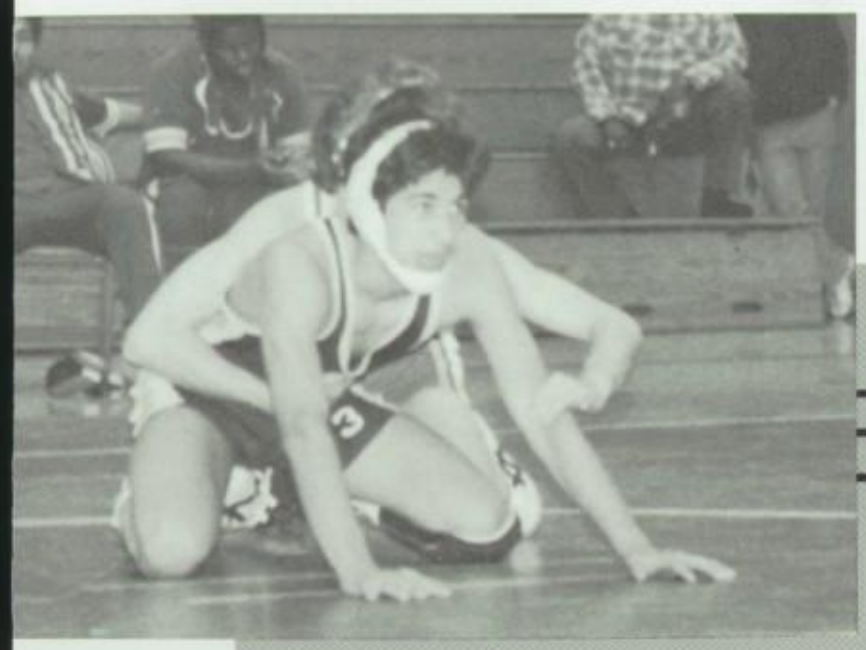
Changes come with every new year and this year's wrestling team was no exception. 1987 marked the year in which University City changed wrestling coaches. Coach Pais, after an eight year hiatus, returned as the wrestling coach. Along with a new coach came a team with more new faces than usual. Losing over half their varsity to graduation, the team was left with only seven seniors on a team of forty nine. Of the seven, only three wrestled before this year. The team was obviously younger than the competition.

But with a younger team comes hope in preparing for the future. "You always try to do the best you can; with a team this extremely young, you have to develop them for next season as well as each match this year," stated Coach Pais. "Young and Eager" was his reply when asked to describe the team.

It was evident during the season the eagerness and practice had paid off. With a two mile run, rope climbing, and a variety of exercises, stretches and mat techniques included in the practices, the cents improved greatly.

These improvements were shown in local tournaments. In one wrestling tournament Cary Rendon, a sophomore, placed third while Curtis Williams, a junior, also took third in another match.

With a year of experience under their belt, returning wrestlers from this years rebuilding team along with a whole crop of incoming wrestlers should help keep University City's quality wrestling program intact.



Cary Rendon mentally rehearses his first move in the second period against San Diego High School.

Adding six more points to the Centurions' score, Lartee Cooper helps shut-out Lincoln.

P.M.A.bility

Joann Dabbert pulls a Kearny spike off the floor to save a point.

Melinda Holliday and Amy Hartin, ready to spring into action on a Mission Bay serve.

Anyone who saw a Volleyball game in '85 could testify that the '86 team had something extra. Their play was percise yet powerful, graceful yet agressive. What had brought this new pazzaz to the team? "P.M.A." replied Coach Scanlin. "P.M.A." was a term used over and over in descriptions of the teams new approach. It stood for "positive mental attitude" and what it contributed to the play of the team was amazing. Thanks to their P.M.A., the players moved over the court with a sureness and intenseness that previous teams had lacked.

P.M.A. was not all that helped the team. Coach Scanlon felt that the '86 team had more natural volleyball skill and sense than any past team. The powerful play of returning players such as Susan Romito and Emily Hernandez, whose efficiency on the court was 90%, was augmented by the skill of new players such as Melinda Holiday, whose perfect sets allowed U.C. to spike the ball down the other teams' throats.

Their hard work at practice also added to their new ability. The average practice consisted of a half hour of warmup and running, an hour and a half of jumping, diving and serving drills and finally an hour of all-out scrimaging.

The improvement in the team from previous years is imense. Their natural skill and their P.M.A. allowed them to play with the strength and accuracy U.C. volleyball teams had been seeking for many seasons.

Fundamentals of Winning

Michele Piancone plots her strategic serve to battle their opponent.

Julie Allyne sets up for another ace serve against Christian High.

Michele Piancone moves into position for a bump.

"As a team we want to win along with having fun and becoming better players," said J.V. team member Julie Allyne. It was that positive attitude that helped the team win first place in the J.V. tournament held at Christian High School earlier this year.

Despite the fact that there were no returning players, the three junior, eight sophomore team was off to a strong start. Competition was tough but with strength and determination the team proved successful. They were off to one of their best starts in years.

Daily practices showed them working to perfect the fundamentals of passing, setting, and serving which Coach Kathy Platt said was excellent this year. She noted several exceptional servers which included both Jill Lyday and Holly Carson who helped contribute to the team's winning success. Her main concern was to condition the team so that they would be ready for next year's varsity. She adds, "They're enthusiastic, learning faster, and are willing to commit the time and effort needed for a winning team."

Cross Court Action

Is Badminton an easy sport to play as people seem to say? "No, it isn't," replies, senior Celina Sasaki, and also a three year player. "It may look easy, but you have to be quick, need a lot of endurance, stamina and must be physically fit to play."

There are many strategies that must be learned in order to play Badminton. Ms. Scanlon, the Badminton Coach, also known as our U.C.'s dance instructor and choreography helps teach strategies to her students, such as foot work, bird placement, lunges, switch step and base line to base line clearing. Badminton is a spring sport that requires much practice and the ability to be on the move at all times.

Each day of practice, Coach Scanlon has her 10th, 11th, and 12th grade Badminton players (a total of 27 students.) do "exhausting and tiring" drills, as some of the players say. Drills such as "clear drop, re-drop," "around the head," "clear smash, block clear," and "drives" are just a few drills learned.

After losing many of the strong players due to graduation, this year's Badminton team started off slower than last's year. With competitions held at Morse, Crawford, Mira Mesa, La Jolla and others. But much practice enabled the players to be more successful than it ever was.

Striving to the Top

Allison Maxwell completes the last leg of the 200 individual medley.

Cyclist Alan Edgett, breaks away from the pack in the Nationals.

Cycling, gymnastics, and ice skating are just a few of the many sports UC students excelled in outside of school. These students played a dual role having to concentrate on both academics as well as sports. Often, their schedules would include daily practices either before and/or after school. Though being in an outside sport required a great deal of extra time, nationally ranked swimmer Allison Maxwell felt that it was well worth the commitment. "Traveling and because it's fun" are reasons Stephanie Williams has been a gymnast for nine years. Aside from gymnastics, Stephanie also excelled in hurdling as a member of the track team.

Mimi Burgos, who in addition to her tennis career outside of school, helped the tennis team to win their first Western League title.

Sophomore Alan Edgett has ridden the road to victory ranked second in the nation in his age division. He has participated in numerous tournaments and hoped to go on to compete internationally.

So whether it's Jon Hawley on horseback or Laurie Brae on ice, these students had willingly put forth the effort with a classic winning spirit.

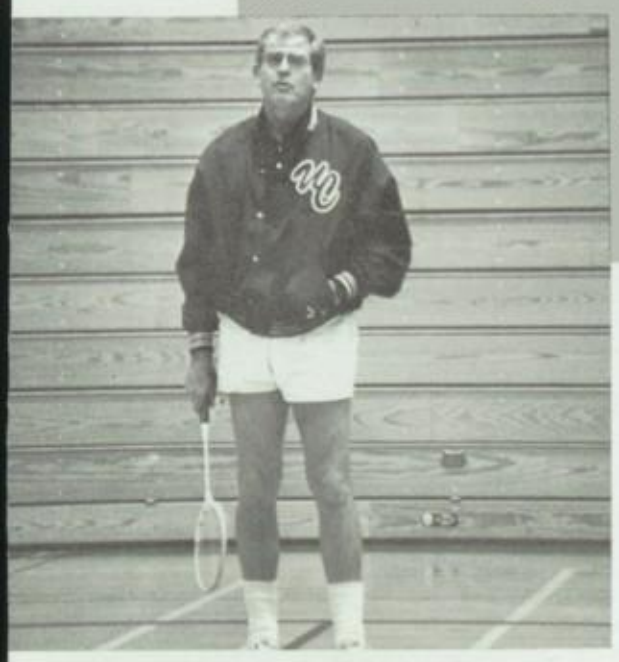
The watchful eye of Coach La-Motte surveys the badminton scene.



Unseen Athletes

There were many athletes at U.C. besides those we watched on the football field. These were the members of the P.E. Classes.

Line Soccer was played in the gym with the walls at either end being the goals. The rules were identical to those of any soccer game, yet the unusual way in which the ball bounced gave the game a new twist.

Squirle Ball was a game of strategy and endurance. After hitting the ball to any area of the gym, the runners would hurry to one of two bases. Runners already at these bases were not required to run resulting in masses of up to ten runners all clinging to one base. At the right time, all the runners would scatter, confusing the defense.

Clubs/Organizations

Steven Engleman and Steve Long from AFS share their brother-like friends.

Positive Influences

Bored of life? Want to meet new friends and influence people? Being a member of one of U.C.'s many clubs and organizations gave you this, and so much more!

Senior, Cherie Lee, joined for these reasons and many others. Cherie was actively involved in the Key Club, Senior Council, CSF, AFS, Interact Club, Ski Club and was the head photographer of the Yearbook and Journalism staffs. She said by being in clubs she gained, "a better understanding of life by getting a broad perspective about how people really are, not just how other people say they are."

Each club had its own goals and philosophies. For example, the Interact Club went to Tiajuana and took canned food to the needy in an attempt to gain better relations with Mexico. The Senior Council's main function was raising money for and organizing the Senior Prom. Cory Heyman, a junior in AFS, said, "Clubs like this help break the culture barrier and bring the whole world closer."

Whether it was a service club or an academic club, there were a few positive goals consistently achieved. As senior, Sheila Armentia, said, "Clubs were a chance to meet people you wouldn't ordinarily get to meet. I also did a lot of things to help other people, but had a lot of fun at the same time!"

These students learn the responsibility of representing their school.

Formal Layout

Dressed in their finest formalwear, the yearbook staff hit the town. The classy-looking members attended a photo session at Horton Plaza, took part in a commercial as extras and finished off the day's activities with a gourmet meal at Denny's in La Jolla. This was a welcome break from the hard work that comes with being a member of the yearbook staff. Not the cruise class that many perceive it, yearbook required a great deal of hard work, effort and creativity in order to put out a book with a touch of class. At times, panic hit. When a deadline rolled around and photos were missing or layouts weren't finished, the stress increased. A page without a headline was a major problem. Nothing was worse than the wrath of the advisor when a student came up with a last minute headline. Of course, a time to look forward to were the many potlucks. Gastronomic delights such as Chicken Divan, Chicken enchiladas and pizza were devoured by ravenous staff members. Then it was back to work. New assignments were given, photos were shot and layouts were designed.

The yearbook staff would like to thank Night and Day Formalwear for graciously supplying the tuxedos for our photo session. We would also like to thank U.A. Theatre at Horton Plaza for letting us use their elegant foyer.

A Touch of Leadership

"Sit down, we have a lot of work to do. We have bills to vote on, signs to be made, and things to discuss," ordered ASB President Mike Nemeth. Mike was always found on his stool behind the podium running the class. The class consisted of not only ASB, Sophomore, Junior, and Senior Class Officers, but dedicated students who wanted to work hard to promote school spirit and to inform the school and staff of all activities.

A major activity organized earlier this year was Homecoming. The parade and dance centralized on the theme "Starlight Safari". Students worked all day preparing the parade and decorating the gym with plants, crates, vines, and animal silhouettes. Other activities included ASB Ball, all-school-BBQ, airbands, and all lunch-time activities. Mr. Corle stated, "Not all activities ran well; however, the students learned from their mistakes and that experience is more valuable for us in the future." Mr. Corle, as ASB Advisor, was there to help organize and make sure no problems occurred.

Also, to help other clubs and organizations the ASB provided funds to support their club activities. Many problems concerning the school are discussed and some even solved by the class. However, few people realize the important role that ASB plays for the school.

All the Right Moves

Dancers, with concentrated looks and dedication, executed their moves again and again in U.C. High's dance class. This class consisted of male and female dancers, beginning and advanced, all with the desire to perform. These performers rehearsed daily under the instruction of Ms. Scanlon, to strive for perfection. Ms. Scanlon felt her classes were special because they perform once or twice a year for the school, and not many other schools have classes that perform. She also felt next year's dance classes should have an intermediate course so dancers would attain more individual attention.

Some of the top dancers of the classes this year were Tamara Gipson, Caryn Mendell, Ginny Eisenhart, and Karen Kelso. Two of the four male dancers were Sergio Seturino and Arthur Landingin. "It's a challenge creating the dances in time for the performances," thought Nanci Lublin. In order to perform in February, dancers often rehearsed during lunch and after school. These extra hours spent brought everyone close together. Two year veteran and dance T.A., Christiane Nielsen, commented, "It's not like a regular dance class, where you hardly know anyone. Everyone gets close and knows each other. It makes us all do good." Most dancers agreed that this year's class was a success. One dancer felt that, "The exercise you get, the friends you make, and the thrill of performing made the class worthwhile."

A Foreign Affair

This year, a foreign affair began with the debut of the AFS Club. The club was organized to fulfill a need for a place for foreign exchange students and AFS participants to get together.

Advised by Mrs. Krasne and led by Stephanie Buck, the club met on the first Monday of each month to discuss activities, fundraisers and listen to members talk about their experiences. Mrs. Krasne commented, "There's a lot of enthusiasm and a sincere interest in doing things."

Activities included a trip to Knott's Berry Farm, an ice-cream social and a bike-a-thon around Mission Bay. Part of the money the club raised helped pay for the exchange students' Prom bids and other school-related activities.

"The club has members who are involved with AFS as well as members who are interested in meeting students from other countries," commented Stephanie Buck. Hanne Kristiansen said she joined because "it's fun."

A New Look

Unity — a bond that held the 1986-87 Varsity Cheerleading squad together. It showed in their cheers, and it was felt by the squad. They looked as if they enjoyed what they were doing, which they did. They worked well together, though they had their minor problems. Kim Loeb said, "We are close in our friendships. Everyone likes each other." Cheer camp in Santa Barbara and many hours of practice led to the squad's unforgettable performances. "It is a lot of hard work. You dedicate your life to cheer," commented Angela Walker.

There were many new cheerleaders raising spirit this year. A larger group and U.C.'s first male yell leader gave this squad a new look.

The new cheer advisor, Brett Weiss, added a special touch to the closeness of the squad. Head Cheerleader, Amy Gladin, commented, "New people meant there was new energy on the squad this year." Different opinions led to variety in their performances. The squad agreed that the large number of people was harder to work with, yet new friendships made it easier to get along.

This year's squad performed on many different occasions. They cheered for football, basketball, soccer, and wrestling. They also performed at pep rallies and sometimes in the quad at lunch. One look at this squad and its talents, the crowd knew that it wanted to cheer their teams to victory.

United Are We

Spirited and unified were terms frequently used to describe this year's J.V. Cheerleaders. Though each member was different, they all worked together sharing the responsibility of promoting school spirit and providing support through both the fall and winter seasons. This included cheering for both football and basketball as well as wrestling and soccer, a first for University City.

They began practices in February which continued throughout the summer. They also attended cheer camp at U.C. Santa Barbara where they learned new techniques in cheering, chanting, and building pyramids.

Promoting leadership and spirit were the main objectives of Advisor Brett Weiss. Head Cheerleader Whitney Punches adds, "Spirit and unity were important factors in allowing the squad to work together as a team.

Drilling to Perfection

"They've come a long way since June," commented drill team coordinator Ellen Doneza, "and have caught on quicker than I thought they would." She referred to University City's first ever drill team organized late last year.

They attended drill camp at U.C. Irvine and learned different techniques in synchronized marching and dancing. They returned with new ideas, new memories, and new friends and by continuing their practices here at school, developed their own unique style. When performance time came their dedication and determination reflected at both halftime during football games and pep rallies where they helped to liven the spirits of the crowd. Doneza adds, "they try hard and believe in themselves." Being a drill team member will be a special memory they are sure to look back upon.

Taking Notes

Anyone taking a tour of the west hall of the 200 building on a Wednesday after school would be greeted by some seriously ugly noises. These unwholesome noises were produced as instruments were dragged out of storage, horns and woodwinds were warmed up, amplifiers were plugged in, drums were tested and several different guitars were tuned simultaneously. This racket mounted until finally a voice broke in.

"Is everyone ready?" it asked, "O.K., let's try a twelve bar blues riff in F sharp. One . . . Two . . . Three . . . Four . . . !"

In an instant, all the different noises came together forming one polished sound that could only be described as . . . Music!

The Musicians Club was the first of its kind at U.C. High. After an attempt to form a Music Club in '85 which failed, the '86 club led by president Mark Fish and Advisor Harriet "Rap Master" Balle, grooved along nicely.

"The main purpose of the club," Mark Fish explained, "is to provide a forum for musicians to meet and learn. The club is also interested in providing good music for the school, on bulletins and during lunch."

Whether performing for an audience or just jamming for fun, the Musicians Club successfully blended the many different styles of U.C.'s musicians into good, solid music.

U.C.H.S. Aerial Squadron

In January, a bus-load of ski fanatics got ready for a long journey to Mammoth Mountain, California. As the destination slowly approached, the skiers found themselves bundling up from intense cold. The trip ceased not far off schedule, and after the dark scramble for skis and bags, the students settled down for the next morning of skiing. After three days of skiing and relaxing to the warm jets of the jacuzzis, not to mention those late-night parties, those now burned out ski fanatics boarded the charter bus for the retreat to San Diego.

A month later another group ventured east; destination Taos, New Mexico. The arrival in Taos was delayed three hours due to an unexpected stop in Embudo, New Mexico. The skiing turned out great with a 70+" base. Overall both trips were a huge success.

Behind Closed Doors

Behind the closed door of Journalism you would hear music being played. Yet, this didn't mean that the class was just playing around. Inside was a group of young journalists who worked furiously, especially near deadline which was two weeks before the paper was actually distributed.

Viviana Waisman and Cory Wurtzel were the editors of the Commander. They made sure that the other students did their jobs and guided them in writing feature stories, researching important issues, and informing the school of new activities each month. Three year journalist, Mark Fish, sat in the little back room behind a computer typing out columns of copy recited by David Marshall. At the same time, Jamie Scarafone worked diligently on his personal column of creativity and humor. While some individuals were responsible for certain parts of the newspaper, the whole group decided what topics to write about and assigned people to do them.

Cory and Viviana both agreed that the best part of journalism was "when the paper all came together and seeing the result of the final product." With Mr. Brown as the advisor, plus the teamwork of the whole class, it gave them great pride to see their work finally in print.

Honorable Role

California Scholarship Federation played an active role not only in honoring the scholastic achievers here at school, but also by serving the community. Many new activities have been planned and accomplished this year led by President Eli Glezer and advisor Mrs. Nanci White. CSF set a new tradition by being the first club to enter a float in the Homecoming Parade. Other volunteer activities included, offering a free Scholastic Aptitude Test math preparation class, peer tutoring, Christmas caroling at UCSD Medical Center, and answering telephones on the Easter Seal Telethon.

Members also worked on fundraisers from rose sales and candy bar sales to help reduce the ticket cost of their annual Disneyland trip.

Historian, Sheila Armentia, expressed, "CSF has become involved in many activities this year in which I hope will gain the interest of the students. It's becoming a more interesting club to join with many new and exciting activities to get involved with."

The role of just being a club of intelligent and enthusiastic students has changed for CSF. Helping others within the school and community has been the key element of their success. The members of the California Scholarship Federation were able to use their various talents and creativity to make a significant improvement in our school.

Reaching Out

This past year, as in previous years, the Interact Club was strong. With forty members it was one of the most popular clubs on campus. Sponsored by the Rotary Club, its main purpose was community service. A requirement set by Rotary for the club was that they must give help to one school, one foreign country and two communities. They must meet these obligations in order to remain active.

The foreign country given aid to was Mexico. Club members collected donations of clothes, toys, and canned goods which were distributed to the people of Tijuana. Other services the club performed were a trip to the UCSD Children's Center on Halloween to give gifts to the children and another trip to a convalescent home. To all the members, this work was very fulfilling and everyone agreed with Cherie Lee when she said, "It was fun and exciting wrapping gifts for the children. I was glad I could make their Halloween more fun."

Service is the Key

"No, we do not make Keys," explained Advisor Rick Mitchell. The Key Club is primarily a school and community type service associated with Kiwanis. Kiwanis is a non-profit organization whose main objective is to aid the community. Together they worked on numerous fundraising projects which included the annual Bowl For Breath which helped to raise money for cystic fibrosis and held a successful Christmas tree sale at Standley Park.

As well as projects with Kiwanis, the Key Club had their own successful endeavors. They played an active role in helping to clean up our school with their Clean Campus project. Club members would issue coupons to those students found picking up trash during lunch. These coupons, redeemable at the student store, not only helped to motivate students to pick up around campus but also helped to maintain cleaner school campus.

Much of the club's goals have already been reached yet they still feel they have more to accomplish. They would hopefully like to repaint the "rainbow hall" which has been frequently the site of vandalism and also to be a sponsor of the upcoming Special Olympics. Though the Key Club is small compared to other clubs on campus, they do much for both the school and community. "All in a days work," jokes member Cherie Lee, " . . . All in a days work."

International Class

Every Thursday during lunch, an interested group of students met with Mrs. Climes, the advisor of the Culture Club. Anyone can join. Membership requirement was nothing more than a positive attitude and a desire to meet new people of any nationality.

Fundraisers that the club planned consisted of button sales and bake sales. They also participated in the multi-cultural fair.

As in past years, with the money raised, all members got together and did something for enjoyment. This year, a trip to Magic Mountain was made. A trip that everyone in the club looked forward to with much enthusiasm.

"To promote positive human race relations and to encourage fellowship and good will among all cultures" was the motto of this year's Culture Club.

A Harmonizing Experience

Whether it was some time after school at night or maybe a Saturday's performance it was definite that all of the ensemble students were there harmonizing their gifted voices together in front of hundreds of faces.

It's been another exciting year for this year's Ensemble. Many outgoing students had to audition for this exciting club. The most talented ones were selected to perform together throughout the school year. Ensemble had officers within the class. They were James Lorenz as President, Shannon O'Keefe as Vice President, and Tim Pais as Treasurer.

Many of the singers experienced what it was like to perform all over San Diego. Mr. Gilliland, the Choral instructor, had his Ensemble Class, consisting of tenth, eleventh, and twelfth graders, perform at places such as, The Kona Kai Club, The Clairmont Lutheran Church, Disneyland, and The San Diego Symphony Auxiliary. There was also a successful annual winter concert performance. The University City High's Ensemble, and The Standley Junior High's Choir, got together to present — "The Sounds of The Holidays," here at the UCHS auditorium on December 17, 1986. Many of the popular songs such as "Little Drummer Boy," and "White Christmas," were sung at this performance.

UCHS is extremely proud of its talented ensemble because no matter where they were — it was a Harmonizing Experience.

A Cetaceous Excursion

"Thar she blows!" was heard as a group of whales was spotted off the shore of Pt. Loma. On January 27, the U.C. High Marine Science Club and students boarded the Seaforth to go whale watching. Excitement was felt by everyone on the bus ride — whether it was to see the whales or just to get out of class.

As everyone boarded the boat, they settled for a two hour journey. Nothing was spotted at first and students became restless. After one hour, a pod of dolphins was seen, and soon after, several whales. This lasted for approximately one half hour, and then the boat headed back towards the docks. Students felt it was an exciting trip. Chuck Kerber commented, "It was a new thing for me." No one knows more about whales than Marine Science teacher, Mr. Reed. He felt this trip was "held on a great day for watching the whales. The water was calm and the weather was good." The club has also gone fishing and to Sea World.

Pack, Sack and Twinkies

Backpacking has been called the purest form of natural expression and fulfillment. To put oneself against the natural environment with no protection other than a sleeping bag, a pack, several pairs of socks, a dozen Twinkies and your own determination is to some the ultimate in pleasure and exercise. The Backpacking Club (also known as the Ecology Club) believed this. The club was more active than past Backpacking Clubs and was able to go more places than in previous years. In their various trips and activities during the year, the club climbed mountains, crossed rivers, and forged paths while enjoying themselves the whole time.

Club Advisor Rick Mitchell, an experienced backpacker and wilderness survival instructor, felt that the 1986-87 club, with their enthusiasm and readiness, was the best he had seen in five years. "You're an excellent group," he assured the club members. "It will be hard for you not to have fun."

Club trips, led by Rick Mitchell and Kathy Salkin, included Sheep Canyon, Green Valley Falls and an instructional cross country skiing trip. The average cost was about three dollars and fifty cents per person.

No matter whether the destination was a desert, a mountain or snow covered fields, the Backpacking Club went with determination.

S.A.D.D. Statistics

The rising statistics of the number of drunk drivers brought new concern for this nationwide problem. The place people could go to talk about their feelings and try to do something about this problem was the S.A.D.D. meetings that took place every Wednesday at lunch. The club was headed by Patti Curtis whose major campaigns were the distribution of bumper stickers printed with the clubs motto and an informational play put on by members of the community.

Though the club was small, the members showed much enthusiasm for their cause. Their objective was to make the roads safer for both drivers and pedestrians, and to make the community more aware of the growing dangers of drunk driving. Patti Curtiss felt, "proud of all the members, they are doing a great job!" The club's mascot was a bird who echoed the goals of S.A.D.D. with the wise motto, "I don't drink and fly!"

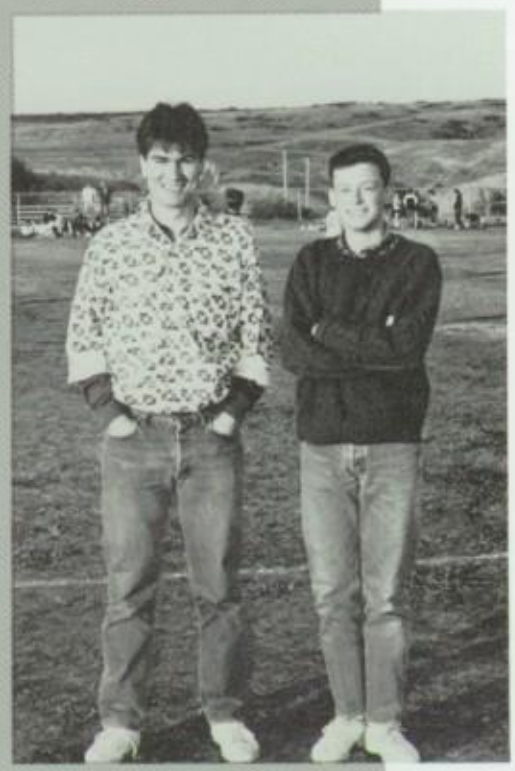
Seniors

Eddie Rockwell, Dave Pelling, and Pat Giblin reflect together on the best of senior memories.

Friendship is the best part of being a senior.

One Step Beyond

"It's a wierd feeling — being a senior — knowing you're spending your last year with people you've been with for so long," commented one senior. Most seniors agreed that their last year at high school was their best. One student stated, "You can take easy classes and get away with it." These are not the only things that made the year special. The senior year for the Class of '87 was filled with activities. To raise money, the seniors had a Promaid. This evening performance, filled with bands and acts, was held in February. Seniors also had a car wash, worked concessions, and sold T-shirts that had the names of the entire class. The seniors had a Senior Slave Day, or Rent-an-Elf. This money made the many senior activities possible. "The best stuff happens at the end of the year," said Senior Class President, Brian Andrews. The senior prom was held May 29 at the Marriott hotel. It was an evening filled with limousines, tuxedoes, gowns, and dancing. In June there was Gradnight at Disneyland. "Being a senior is taking one more step toward the future, yet still holding on to the past," one senior said. The Class of '87 had a year full of friendships, activities, parties, excitement, thrills, and unforgettable memories.



Being a senior gives these students more time to relax.

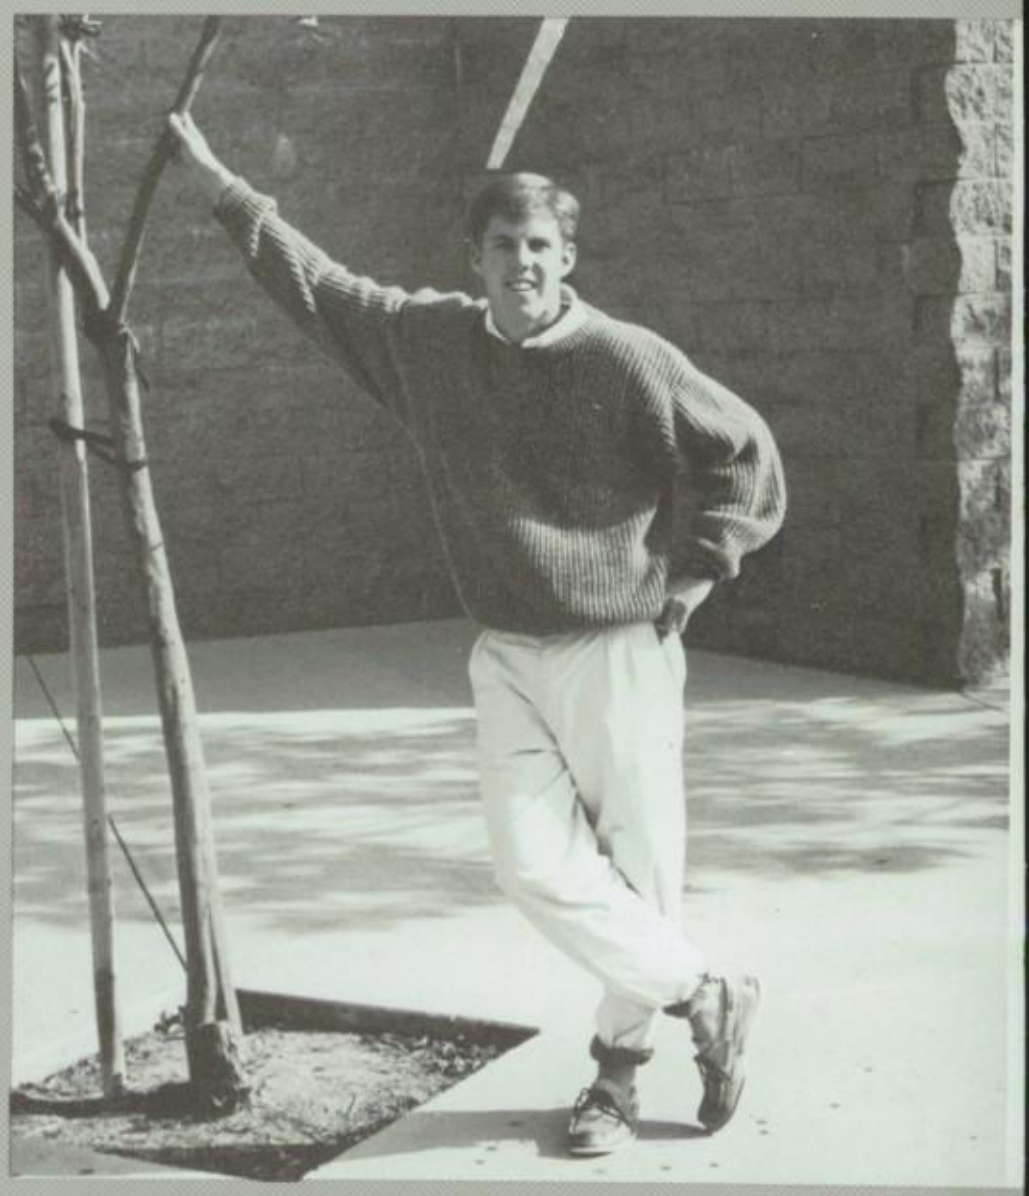
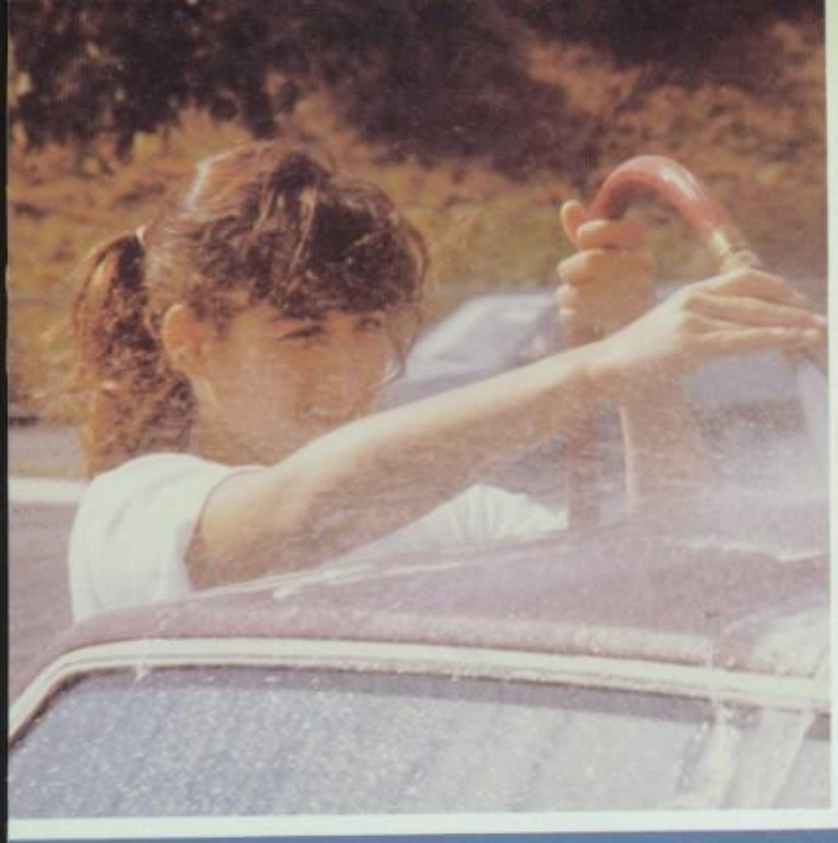
High Class Officers

Every Tuesday during lunch over 40 seniors brought their lunches into Mrs. Mendoza's room for Senior Council meetings. The meetings were led by President Brian Andrews, Vice President Clarin Wong, Secretary Sheila Armentia, and Treasurer Debbie Liang. Plans were discussed for the Homecoming float and concession stand sales, numerous fundraisers, and most importantly the Senior Prom. Starting in their sophomore year they began raising money for the prom. The year's fundraisers included car washes, bake sales, concession stand sales, a Senior Dance, Dr. Dean, etc. For Homecoming they had a "winning" float. That and other class competitions provided money for the prom. The prom was a success at the La Jolla Marriott Hotel. Their three years of hard but enjoyable work paid off, leaving them with memorable experiences and good times.



Our resident President, Senior Brian Andrews.

President: Brian Andrews; Vice President: Clarin Wong; Treasurer: Debbie Liang; Secretary: Sheila Armentia.



Wendy Borsari keeps on top of things.

Melissa Good reviews the actual necessity of this activity.

The Senior Council Crew, makes the clean shine through.

"This is not exactly my idea of a good time," sighs Raena Winters.

Could Dance All Night

The lights dimmed and six "cats" stalked the U.C.H.S. auditorium stage. Three of these performers were Sheila Aberin, Christiane Nielsen, and Kelly Morgan. They danced together frequently with the U.C. Dance Company. "It's so much fun. I love to do it," said Sheila. Christiane and Kelly became involved in a dance group entitled Electric Force. Sheila planned to join them when her role as a cheerleader was completed. They all have danced at Peninsula and Stage 7. Sheila performed at the Del Mar Fair, and Christiane appeared in "The Whiz." Kelly stated, "My special talent just happens to be dance. It's very personal and when the music turns on, something clicks."

Talented Telegrams

Leasa Hood, a former student of the School of Creative and Performing Arts for eight years is now performing singing telegrams from birthday congratulations to holiday greetings. Working for "Live Wires" offers an opportunity for Leasa to display her talents. Leasa was discovered by "Live Wires" when she performed at the Grande Opening of Horton Plaza.

Leasa is the only employee of "Live Wires" attending high school. She takes time after school and on Tuesdays and Thursdays when not attending Political Science to deliver telegrams.

She has presented telegrams to people such as Craig Lefferts. Leasa enjoys working for "Live Wires" because, "People react so well to it."

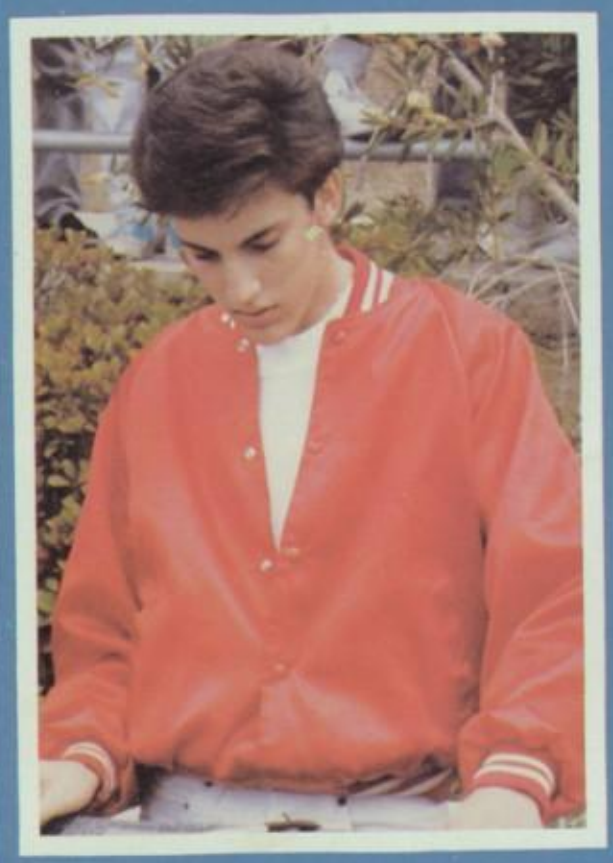
An Itch For Scratching



Have you ever wondered who the man is behind the voice of the D.J.? Well you now have a chance to meet one of them, Andy Stevens. Once Andy heard the sound of Mantronix on the radio, he knew it was for him.

"Scratching and mixing isn't for everybody. It takes hard work and determination to make it to the top."

Andy wants to be a D.J. in an L.A. dance club after high school. He is currently with Mid-City Productions and with all his talent and a little luck, he'll be able to reach his dance club goal.

The next time you're at a dance club or just listening to the radio, it might be Andy who is the man behind the voice of the D.J.

Touch of Classic Harmony

"I'm singing in the rain, just singing in the rain!" Some people do not enjoy singing in the rain, or anywhere else. But Nicki Fagan would be more than happy to sing in the rain. She has been singing for nine years, and it has become a major part of her life. She started out in a church choir in the Philippines, and has since gone on to sing in school choruses, competitions, and has sung in Christmas carols for KYXY radio station.

She practices outside of school for several hours everyday in hopes of becoming a recognized, professional talent. What does it take? "Other than a good voice, it takes confidence, enjoying your voice, and enjoying performing in front of people." Nicki also adds, "It has to make you happy."

'That's What I Believe'

Debbie Kutnik has been a performer for most of her life. An actress and a singer, she has been in many productions throughout the years. She has been a major force in the success of musicals for the community group "Whatisit?" in the past four years. One unique opportunity for Debbie was the chance to sing "That's What I Believe."

Debbie has begun moving into the professional world of singing. She recently cut a demo-tape and has been hired to sing at weddings and a performance for Carlos Murphy's. Why does she devote herself so tirelessly? Debbie feels that singing in particular, has "brought the same amount of pleasure to the people listening to me, as I have received." At least, that is what she "believes."

A Trademark Talent

Do the phrases off set, color process, or production sound confusing to you? These are terms commonly used in Graphic Arts and are more than familiar to Todd Cohen, Shari Noble, and Steve Engleman. These three outstanding students have shown interest in the field of Graphic Arts. All have taken their products to the State Fair and have won awards. Shari won first place for a photograph of Parrots taken at the zoo. Todd has received an honorable mention award for a t-shirt printed with "puffy ink." Through Graphic Arts Steve has learned how to make tickets, programs, and newspapers produced here at school. Careers in Graphic Arts may be the future for all three of these students.

Just Clowning Around

Joann Vaine's job is not an ordinary one. It requires her to paint children's faces, twist balloons into animals and make people smile. Joann is a professional clown.

Joann became interested after a clown performed at her 13th birthday party. Her mother, who is also a professional clown, convinced her to attend a class on clowning at San Diego State. Ten weeks later, Joann became Sparkles.

Today Sparkles does everything from children's parties to business openings. The transformation from Joann to Sparkles the Clown takes at least an hour.

When asked about the benefits of being a professional clown, Joann replied, "The immediate affection from the kids is great."

Top Notch Riders

Top equestrians on the west coast competed in the A Circuit horse shows. That included Tanya Levorchick and Susie Stutzer.

Tanya became interested in riding seven years ago. She rode at Showpark Equestrian Center everyday after fourth period and on weekends. She owned Joshua (showname Steal Prospect) and leased Nicholas (Noble Knight). Tanya's trainer was John Lipari. She competed and won in competitions throughout California and in Arizona.

Susie rode for eight years. She rode Eddie (Best of Times) at the Rancho Bernardo Riding Club. Her trainer was Chuck Esau. Susie devoted six days a week to riding. She won many competitions in the county shows and began riding in the A Circuit.

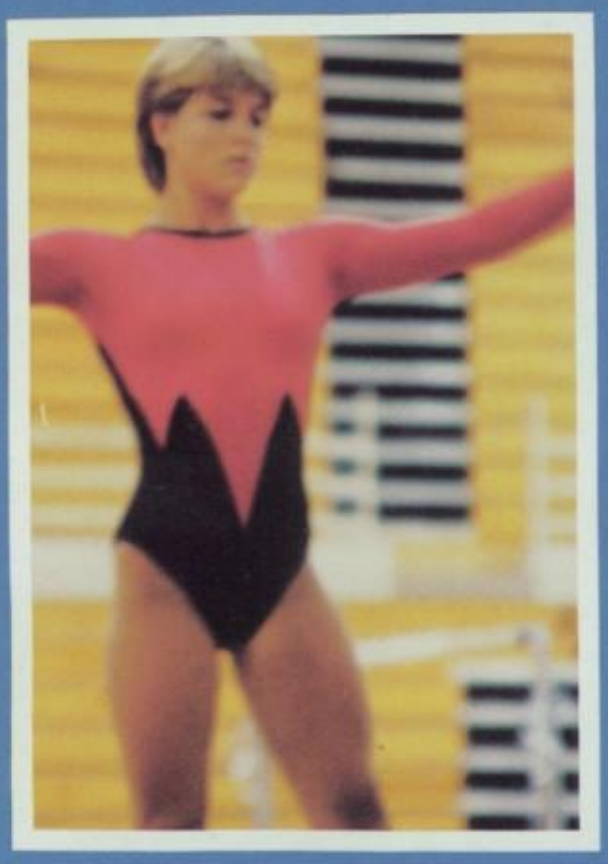
Aerial Odyssey



Perhaps the most demanding sport, gymnastics requires strength, control and grace. It is a sport in which only a few can excel. Among these is Michelle Colavin. In her ten years of gymnastic experience, Michelle has qualified for the SDSU gymnastic team and participated in national competitions.

Along with school, Michelle, practices 23 hours a week and still finds time to teach gymnastics to young children in a program created by SDSU.

While gymnastics may appear effortless and graceful to the observer, it takes a level of precision and control unequaled in any other sport. People like Michelle know this and are willing to dedicate themselves to a pursuit of this athletic perfection.

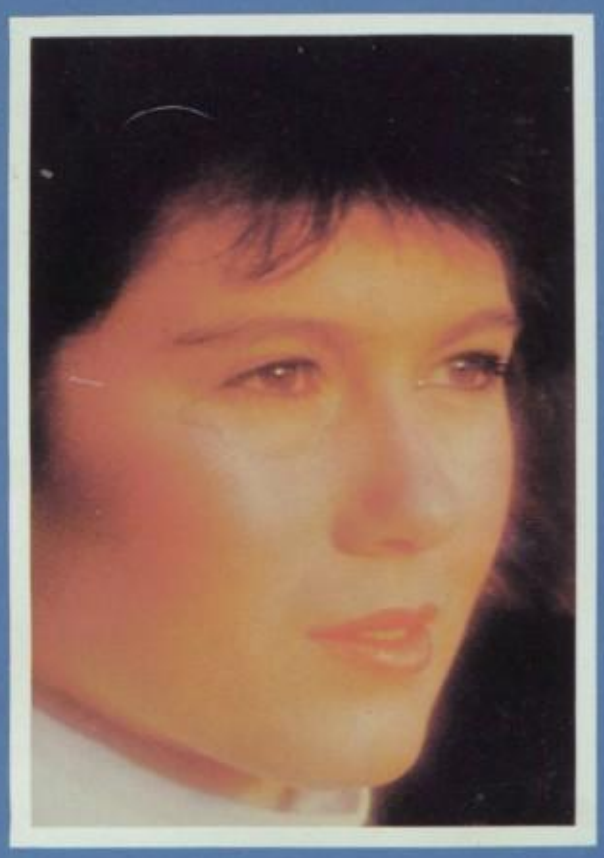
Picture Perfect



"Modeling isn't all glamorous. It's very hard work and time consuming," commented Brigitte Alcantara. Brigitte has spent the last three years modeling, beginning when her mother sent a picture of her to John Casablanca's Modeling Agency. Since then, she has modeled in many stores such as Broadway, Nordstroms, and Charlotte Russe. She also did a magazine ad for Great American Savings, and has appeared in the magazine, International Male. She signed a three year contract with John Casablanca's Elite Agency. She decided that she enjoys working for magazines the most because she is able to see the final results. She said, "You have to have a lot of . . . just something inside of you that makes you want it."

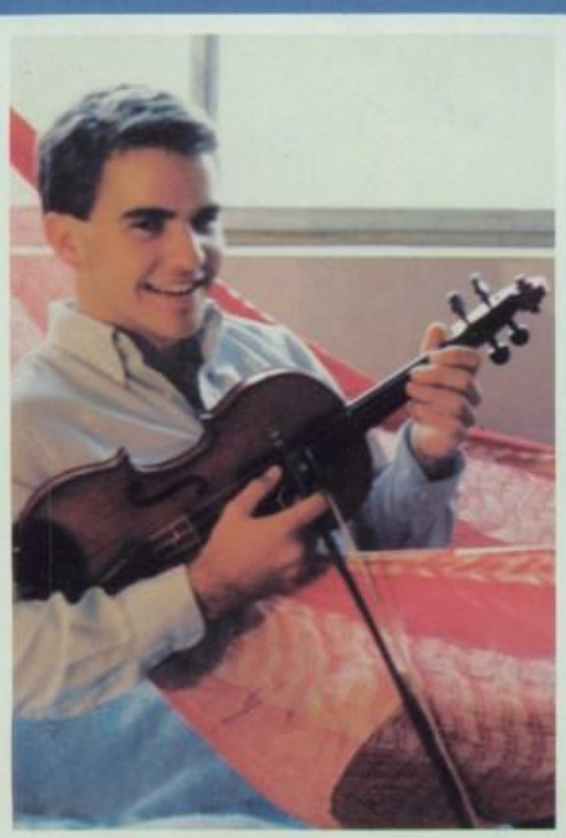
First Class Violinist



There's an odd little myth that says if you play Mendelssohn's Eb Minor Violin Concerto to your young son, he will become a famous violinist. This could be the reason that senior Mark Fish started playing the violin at the age of three. Thirteen years later, Mark is the first seat violinist in the San Diego Youth Symphony Orchestra conducted by Mr. Louis Campiglia.

Mark has played at Balboa Park and the downtown Civic Center on numerous occasions. Last summer, the symphony traveled to Scotland; "Scotland was a wonderful experience because we played at the Aberdeen International Youth Festival and made lots of friends. Music was a binding force, a way of communication."

Juniors

The winning spirit is evident as detected by Mr. Benedict and Mr. Reed.

Halfway Up

Organization played a significant role towards the success of the many activities planned by the junior class council. The council consisted of interested juniors wanting to be involved. Representing the junior class were officers: Daina Finch, President; Justin Stockton, Vice President; Whitney Punches, Secretary; and Brian La Mott, Treasurer.

Their primary goal was raising money to finance next year's prom. They accomplished this by planning activities and fundraisers such as class ring and football pin sales.

They were also responsible for putting together this year's junior float which was proudly paraded during Homecoming. These events are examples of the dedication that the council and its officers put forth.

They not only represented the junior class but worked with them in the hopes of making the 1987 school year the best and 1988 even better.

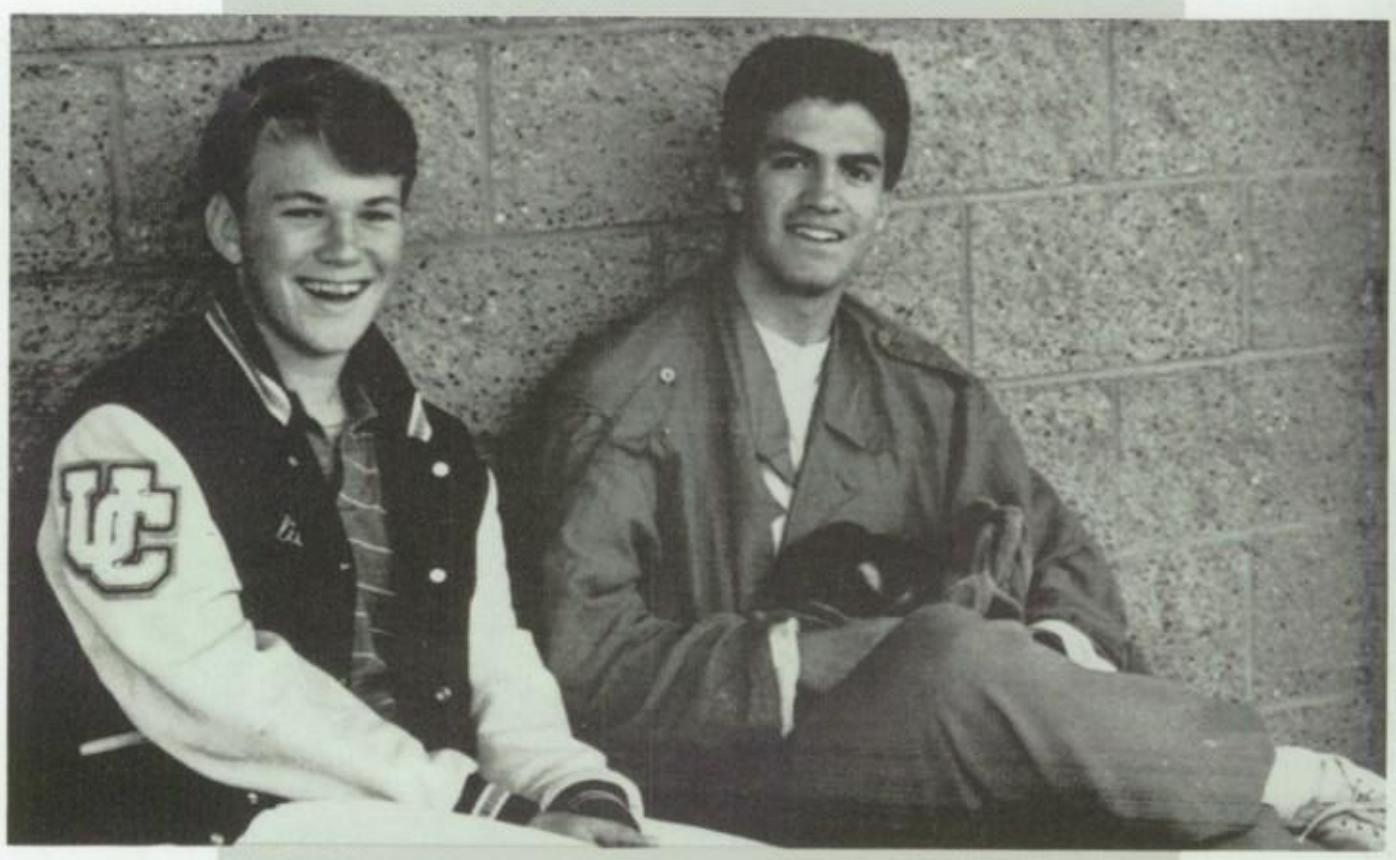
Sophomores



A free period is a welcome break for Sophomores Charlie Torok and Frankie Gonzales.

Rising Class

The rumors of entering high school are well known. "It's huge, scary and impersonal," 'informed' sources will say. Tales of campuses in which tenth graders were looked down on and in which sophomores had no clout were enough to worry some incoming sophomores but far from discourage them.

The Sophomore class, the largest in U.C. history, soon discovered that with their size and spirit they could have just as much clout as any other class. Fears of junior and senior domination faded as sophomores jammed the stands at football games, won class competitions at lunch and won class yells at pep rallies. Sophomores assumed important roles both in varsity athletics and in student government. The large number of sophomores with 4.0 grade averages showed their academic commitments.

The class of '89 displayed, with force, their commitment to U.C. High through their enormous support and through turning a year characterized a difficult and frightening into a year of spirit and fun.

Secretary Kristy Berry, President Jacob Glezer, and Treasurer Stephanie Bernstein.

Happiness is evident on sophomore faces just after U.C.'s basketball victory.

John McCreary carefully studies his subject before putting creativity into action.

Staff

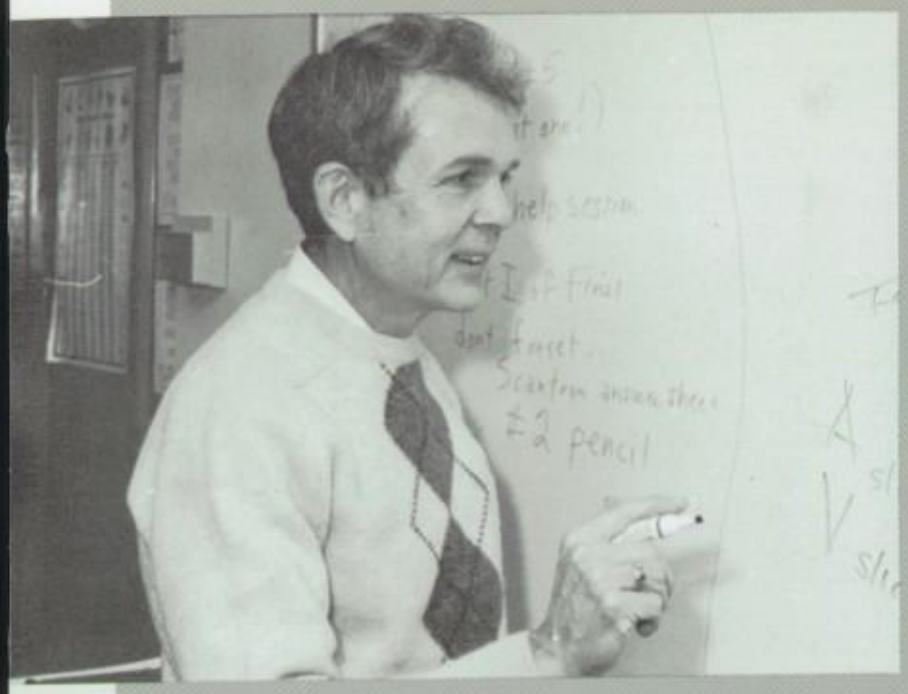
Librarian, Mrs. Sulkin, shows that her duties are not always difficult.

Teamwork Is The Key

Teamwork is the key to unlock the doors of many obstacles, and Head Coach Mary McNaughton had what it took to bring out the talent and enthusiasm in all of her team members. Principal Mary McNaughton's game plan was to keep every member on the team working together to tackle its goals. Mary's new spark rekindled the flame that burned in the administrative line, the teachers, the team counselors, and all the rest of the crew.

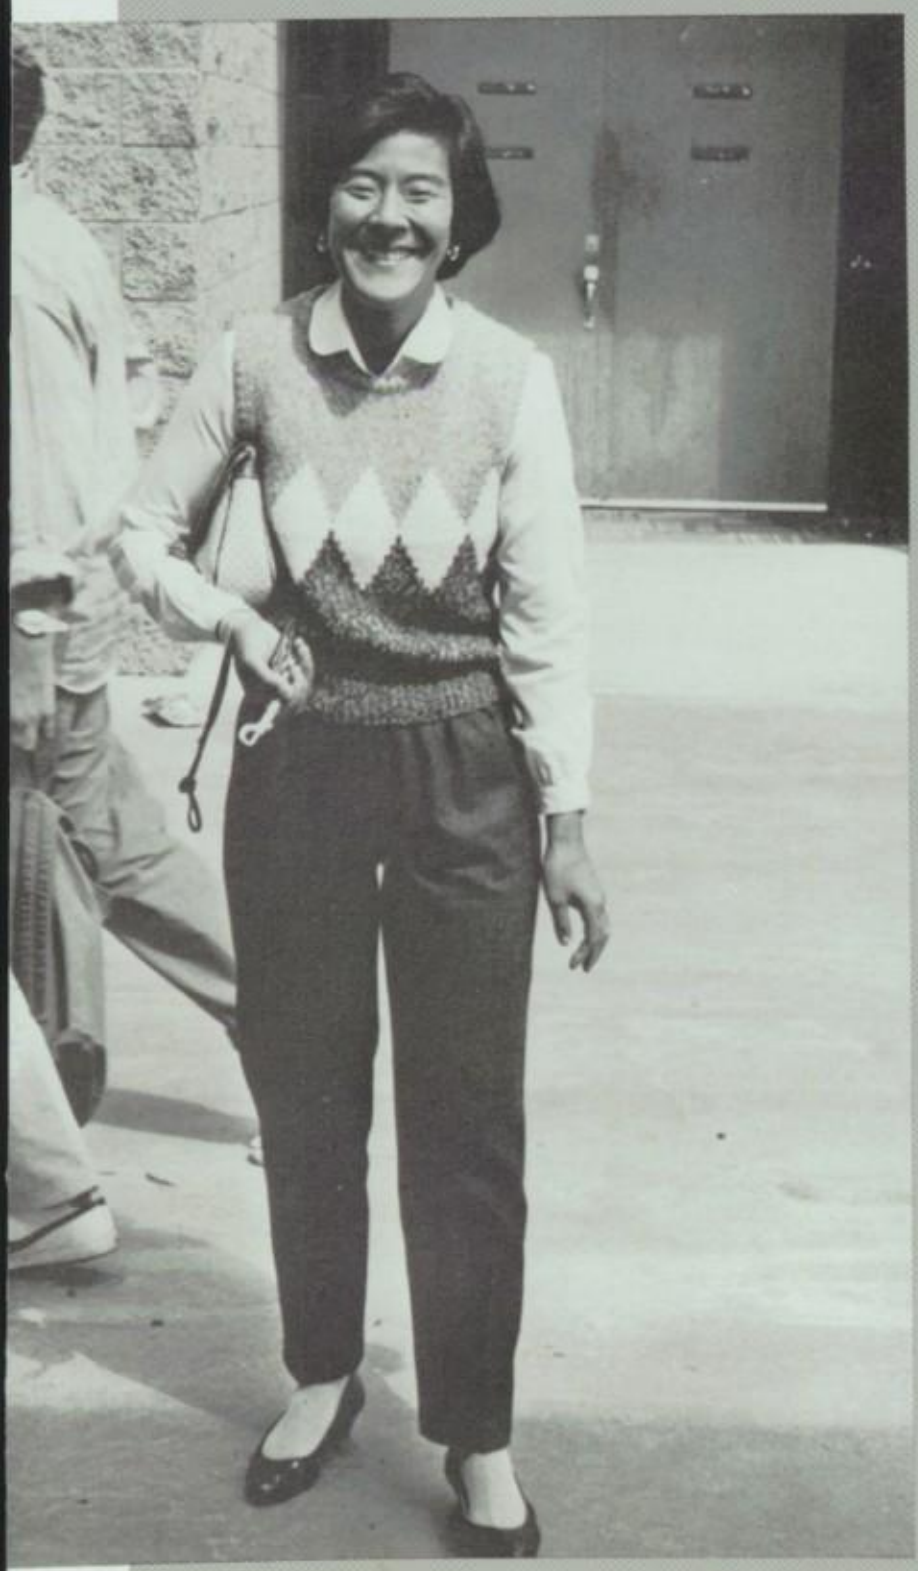
The team's season was spectacular. Everyone pulled together for each and every victory and surprisingly suffered very few upsets. The unity of the University City team was unmatched.

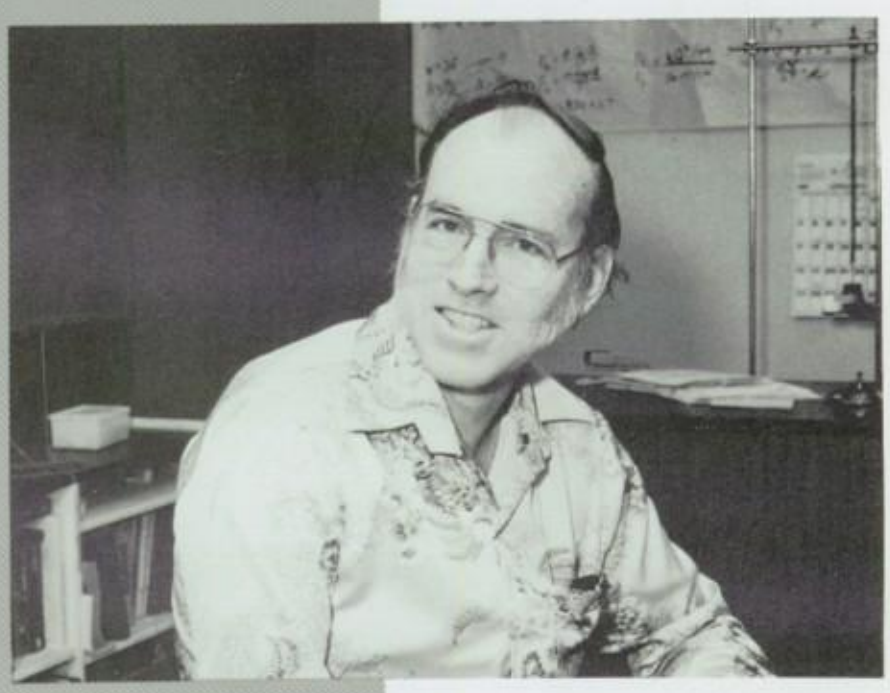
Their incredible compatibility made it possible for them to "touchdown with class."



Calculus teacher, Mr. Whited, explains derivative cosine functions.

Mr. Burkett spent his first year here teaching History and Geography.





Ms. White shows teaching expertise by becoming the 1986 Teacher of the Year, an honor among teachers.

Mr. Owen thinks about that special student in A.P. Physics and wonders if an "A" or a "B+" is justified.

Mrs. Pearley looks for her student's book of the month card.

Vice Principal, Mr. Nagle, gets down to business.

Head of the Class

"PICK UP YOUR TRASH!!!" This may have been a very familiar phrase heard by those who ate lunch on campus. For Mrs. Pearley, our new Vice Principal, getting students to clean up the Quad at lunch was her biggest challenge during her first year at U.C. Some of her other responsibilities were the race/human relations program, open house, minimum days, and substitute teachers. Another challenge for her was communicating with A.S.B., cheerleaders and the drill team, to organize assemblies and rallies.

However, Mrs. Pearley wasn't the only new kid on the block. Mrs. Mary McNaughton also celebrated her first year as our new Principal. Both of the administrators had positive first impressions about our school. Mrs. McNaughton remarked that she was, "very impressed with the academics. The school is wonderful and has a lot of school spirit." She also felt the students' courtesy and maturity helped her adjust to a new school. The staff, administration, and counselors were helpful also.

In addition to Mrs. Pearley, Mr. Nagle was the other Vice Principal. He was a tremendous help and joy to all. He had many responsibilities that were unknown to the students. A few of these were attendance, policies and procedures, student teachers, site security, library/media center services, campus supervision, and the school newspaper and annual. He brought a smile and gave support to students in even the worst situations; whether it be a lost purse, a jammed locker, or a broken relationship.

All of the administrators gave an added incentive for students to come to school. Mr. Nagle's cheerful face and golf cart became his trademarks. Mrs. Pearley's sparkling smile and Mrs. McNaughton's sense of humor brightened everyone's day. They were all very supportive.

"Not you again," thinks Mrs. McNaughton.

"You need help with what?" asks Mr. Nagle.

"I may be new, but I'm not dumb!"

Mrs. Pearley thinks back on her high school years.

This years faculty was led by new principal, Mrs. Mary McNaughton. During fifty five minutes a day for nine months the students and faculty shared a closeness that perhaps did not exist in any other school. The teachers were dedicated to teaching us more than just academics, they also helped their pupils outside of school. Many teachers wrote college recommendations, and some even helped out with problems concerning friends and parents. One teacher even gave her students quotes to help them communicate better with their parents. " . . . there is nothing either good or bad but thinking makes it so," Hamlet. Time and effort was spent in dedication to help coach football, basketball, soccer, and many others. In addition to athletics the faculty supervised such club and organizations like, Student Council and Interact. Some clubs well known to all could not have happened without the supervision of the talented faculty of University City High School!

Mr. Benedict is happy with his new position as head counselor.

Top Class Organizers

"Who's he?" a student whispered. A new face was found in the counseling office this year. Head counselor, Mr. Louis Benedict, joined counselors Mrs. Nancy Goodpasture, Mrs. Sandy Madden, and Dr. Weldon Keating, for his first year at U.C.H.S. "It's one of the top schools in the city," Mr. Benedict said. He felt the students were outstanding, and the counselors were excellent.

A larger enrollment made scheduling difficult, but Mrs. Goodpasture said all problems were quickly solved. Mrs. Madden wished they could have spent more time with students individually. All counselors felt the new staff, teachers and administration were wonderful. Dr. Keating commented, "I've enjoyed it here more than any other place I have ever been." The counselors agreed that our school had a warm and friendly atmosphere.

"You said what to your teacher?" exclaims Dr. Keating.

"It's too early in the morning!" whines Mrs. Goodpasture.

An Integral Part

"Make my day!" says Deanie Stevens, administrative assistant.

The counseling secretaries show a classic form of teamwork.

Financial secretary Marge Bray carefully watches over the money.

Mary Scheidt and Elieen Fagan play a principal role.

In the counseing office, it was easy to see the secretaries up to their ears in paper work and phone calls. In the attendance office, the same hustle and bustle of devoted secretaries could be seen. They listened to excuses both farfetched and serious, of absent students. Deanie Stevens, the administrative assistant, has a list of responsibilities that includes student bus transportation and lockers. "Most of my duties are student oriented and I enjoy this very much. I like to think of my job as an integral part of the educational system."

This group of hard workers called the classified staff, was definitely "an integral part" of the school.

The attendance secretaries are ready to meet the demands.

Knowledge and Speed

Halder, Lee, Snee. Three of a few select names that represented University City in Academic league a year ago. The same names that won last year's 'Scholastic Superstars' on channel ten last season. Those names are known all too well to this year's team consisting of the j.v. member of last year. Last year's j.v. team, however, moved into the varsity spot rather well. With Eli Glezer as the Varsity captain, the team was expected to equal last year's success.

One member, Chris Ransom, chuckled at the thought of receiving a varsity letter for being able to answer questions. But to anyone who has witnessed a U.C.-La Jolla match, Academic league is no laughing matter. The members have to be knowledgeable in seven different categories: Science, Math, Literature, Fine Arts, English, Social Studies and Current Events. Like any other sport, Academic league meets twice a week to practice, in hope of increasing their knowledge and speed in answering questions.

As a tradition here at UC of superior team sports and superior education begins to form, the Centurion academic team combine the two and come out a winner.

Did you ever wonder about the Babylonian Captivity? Or who Brunelleschi and Josquin des Pres were? Well all you had to do to find out was attend one of the Academic Decathalon's many exciting competitions. At these meets, teams representing different schools from around the county participated in a college-bowl type competition. Prior to the event, nine highly motivated students met for after-school study sessions. They mentally prepared themselves by studying many academic subjects, just as an athlete would prepare himself with rigorous conditioning. The team also had a coach, Mr. Gary Burkett.

The team itself was comprised of three different levels with three members in each level. The highest level was called Honors, the second highest was Scholastic and the third highest was Varsity. Each student participated in 10 academic events, including six multiple choice exams in Economics, Fine Arts, Grammar and Literature, Mathematics, Science and Social Science. Every member also competed with a written essay, a prepared and an impromptu speech and an oral interview.

1986 proved to be quite a successful year for U.C.'s first Academic Decathlon team. Out of over 40 teams, they placed ninth after the final Decathlon event, The Super Quiz. Senior Joel Pearson walked away from the finals with 4 medals. The Academic Decathlon team proved U.C. High's superiority in yet another field of competition.

UCHS was again this year, one of the highest ranked schools in the academic departments in San Diego County. One of the contributors to this success was the Math Team led by Mrs. White, the advisor, and Eli Glezer, the leader. During the meetings that took place every Tuesday, the team took tests in preparations for the various state competitions. "We have a strong team this year," claimed Mrs. White. UC's Math Team was ranked fourth out of fourteen in the County.

Through the various courses offered, students obtained knowledge from the influential teachers. From computer science to physics, students obtained the valuable resource of education to help them in the future.

A Year of Transition

1986 left with a bang. Scandal rocked the White House in a controversial situation compared with Watergate. Reagan was unable to clear his otherwise unblemished record of discovered blunders in the Iranian situation. The search continued in the courts as top White House officials took "the fifth."

Terrorism peaked during the year as bombings in Europe continued. The TWA bombing, in which four were fatally wounded, was still fresh in many minds.

Steps were taken in a positive direction toward better U.S.-Soviet relations. Gorbachev and Reagan displayed sincere willingness to cut back on nuclear weapons and promote world peace. The summit at Reykjavik was the letdown of the year.

Yet in contrast with cover-ups, violence, and disappointments, the world saw a number of fantastical triumphs. Lady Liberty celebrated her 200th birthday; the American Constitution also shared its bicentennial year. Dick Rutan and Jeana Yeager flew around the world without stopping to refuel in their Voyager aircraft.

World peace took two leaps forward when the United States formed a human chain in Hands Across America, and the Pope called for peace and an end to fighting.

Russian physicist Andrei Sakharov, was finally allowed to return to his homeland. In a similar fashion, many Americans shared a hope that the America's Cup would return to the United States.

1986 to 1987 was a time of challenge and sacrifice. The key word is transition. Looking back, reviewing past mistakes and trying to make progress toward the future. When 1987 arrived it brought with it a sense of relief and new found hope for the future. From 1986-1987 the world transcended into new modes of thought.

Student Life

An enthused crowd expresses their team spirit in the "Jam the Gym" contest.

Face It We're Classy

At some point in time, all of us are asked, "What is the social life at U.C. High like?" Although student answers varied, one thought remained consistent: U.C.'s yearlong list of social activities offered interesting and fun possibilities.

Overwhelming spirit was evident early in the year during the "Starlight Safari" spirit week activities. "Seniors have made their presence known and other students have shown their spirit at pep rallies and other activities," claimed senior Rachel Rigoli. Another student boasted, "U.C. has class — face it we're classy!"

Spirit and good times remained an integral part of the year as it was displayed during informal and formal dances, the all-school barbecue, prom aid, and the air band competitions. "I liked all the variety of activities; a definite contrast to junior high," said an enthusiastic sophomore, Richard Scuderi. All in all, the associated student body planned activities that "really let the students 'cut loose' from the grind of school work," according to a reflective senior, Stephanie Buck.

Prom Aid:

Students Band Together

On February 27, a crowd of over 400 people packed the auditorium to watch U.C. High's first annual Prom-Aid, benefiting the senior class. This idea, thought of by Sean Dreilinger, raised approximately $1100 for the senior prom. M.C.'s, Susan Romito and Mike Nemeth, introduced all of the acts to the enthusiastic crowd.

The performers were excited about Prom-Aid. Rod Cowell and Grady Boyce, from the band Chrysalis, both felt that Prom-Aid was a good idea because it demonstrated talent and raised money. This band performed several songs and was followed by four other bands. Bandover, with singer Marco Zirino, presented a crowd responsive addition to their songs by throwing a huge beachball into the audience. Two other bands were Donut Run, with Rick Dieterle, and The Event.

In between these bands were various acts. Laura Jalowayski and Leasa Hood sant beautifully, and were accompanied by pianists, Moira Dowell and Debbie Liang. The Return of Baby Face and the rap by Kings of Devastation brought crowd participation. The Grammer Rap with Mrs. Balle and Coach Yandell caused much laughter, as well as the outrageous lip sync by Coach Mitchell. The show ended with All of Us singing five original songs. Jamie Scarafone said, "I was nervous, but I'd gladly do it again."

SAFARI Spirit

With Starlight Safari as a theme, the coordinators of Spirit Week planned lunchtime activities that were guaranteed to psyche up the students for the Homecoming festivities.

Many students expressed positive feelings toward the whole Spirit Week idea. ASB President Mike Nemeth agreed, "This year there seems to be an increase in how many students are participating. If spirit's there, it's there and if it's not, it's not. I definitely see spirit here." Spirited seniors said, "Spirit Week is us . . . unity . . . everyone together . . . "

STARLIGHT

Homecoming, on November 14, was a week-long spirited success, from Spirit Week to the Homecoming game and through the dance. The excitement became intensified during the class competitions all week, leading up to the Homecoming game on Friday afternoon.

Before the game, the caravan of floats descended down Genesee to return and circle the football field. The Sophomores displayed their interpretation of "Starlight Safari" as a group of cannibals cooked their "star." The Juniors relaxed in their quest for the Blue Centurion. The CSF float was an animalized salute, bringing up the rear.

Needless to say, the Seniors took the prize for their float modeled after the "African Queen."

The Centurion victory over the Clairemont Chieftains (30-7) only escalated the emotion. Paul Macrenato led the team with three amazing touchdowns. Ron White added to the excitement by making a 54 yard field goal, beating the school record. Halftime was also the time for the announcement of the King and Queen.

Most people were pleasantly surprised when they arrived to find the gym transformed into a tropical rain forest. As midnight approached and the last couples exited underneath the bamboo hut, the climax of Starlight Safari slowly dwindled away.

Classic Camouflage

Whether it was Freddy Kruger from the popular movie, 'Nightmare On Elm Street," roaming around our campus during Halloween Day, or Jason from "Friday The 13th," ghosting around with an axe, all helped to make this Halloween event an outstanding time filled with fun and laughter. Participants enjoyed choosing to dress up as aliens from outer space, or dressing up as one of their favorite performers.

Many of the U.C. students participated in the various activities held, which included the Halloween Dance and the costume contests. Some of the lucky winners at the dance were Lisa Pondrom, dressed in sheets, Jennifer Steinman, dressed up as "Wonder Bubbles," and Leasa Hood, as "Mary Had A Little Lamb." Each received a winning prize of five dollars.

The student body was not the only one to participate. Faculty members and children from the Child Development class also dressed up in their costumes. They roamed around the campus scaring all those who decided to observe instead of participating.

This year's Halloween turned out to be an exciting memorable event with U.C.'s 'Classic Camouflage."

Masquerade Ball

We rocked the S.S. Berkley with excitement on February 20. The A.S.B. Ball came to such a climax that the dancing rocked the boat. "I thought I was imagining it!" laughed Sheila Armentia.

It was definitely the place to be. Over 450 guests came to socialize with friends they didn't see everyday, dance, laugh, and just enjoy themselves.

The dance floor overflowed into the aisles and out onto the top deck. The beautifully star-filled sky provided a cool get-away from the heated cabin. The bottom deck was opened, where you could tour the museum of model ships, to relieve the crowding.

Some felt that having the Ball at the same place as the previous year gave a familiarity to the night that helped them relax a little more.

To complement the boat's antique beauty were gold and blue decorations. These helped to bring the 19th century theme of "Masquerade" into the year 1987.

The Masquerade Ball's court was led by King — Armin Munevar, Queen — Nicole Stevens, with Prince — Dave Hustosky, Princess — Demethra Smith and Duke — Paul Griffin, Duchess — Vivian Cleary.

What is it that makes a dance a real success? the D.J. Mid-City Productions provided a good variety of music to satisfy most everyone. You could say we really rocked the night away.

Fashion Mania

Broadway Bound

As the remaining moments of 1986 waned, thousands of cold pedestrians pushed and shoved throughout Times Square hoping to get a glimpse of the traditional New Year's Eve ball falling to welcome 1987. High above on the 28th floor of the Milford Plaza Hotel, twelve UC students joined hundreds of others from all over the West Coast, enjoying a bird's eye view of the festivities. New Year's Eve could have been termed the climax of UC's third annual New York trip, but it was just one of the myriad memories.

Because the trip was based on theatre, students had an opportunity not only to see four shows included in the package, but also to receive half price tickets for many other plays. The itinerary included Cats, Neil Simon's Broadway Bound, Front Page, starring John Lithgow and Richard Thomas, and The Musical Comedy Murders of 1940. Students had the chance to talk to the stars of Broadway Bound, and they even ran into Emilio Estevez and Demi Moore at a repertory theatre. Students also participated in workshops and many auditioned for television commercials and soaps, the stage, dance, and musical comedies.

Veteran New York trip sponsor, Ms. Brown, had a particularly exciting trip this year: "We only had twelve students go this year, so we did many things together as a group instead of going off in different directions. Plus, their adventurous spirit made the trip more fun for everyone."

Washington — Close Up

Sunday, February 15 dawned crisp and clear as nine U.C. students and advisor Ms. Goodhue eagerly anticipated a week long adventure to Washington D.C. The group was justly rewarded when they arrived on the scene.

Highlights of the trip included tours of Embassies, talks by congressional aides, and an international relations game — in keeping with the theme of the event. In the game, students set up a mock international scene complete with negotiations and treaties.

The excursion was made possible by the Close-Up Foundation, (so titled due to its offer of revealing U.S. government "close-up"). 170 students, (including U.C. students), from such places as S. Carolina, Arkansas, Florida, and southern California, made the trip to the nation's capitol.

The students worked hard for weeks before the actual trip, earning as much as possible to reduce costs. Soliciting donations and selling candy helped lessen the price of the trip. All the hard work paid off, however, for as Mielle Schwartz remarked, "It made me look at politics more in depth — I no longer accept ideas straight off, I think more about them. It made me want to get more involved." Mike Cobb exclaimed, "Wonderful! It was great!"

Hot Spots

Scripps Pier-La Jolla Shores

Within the myriad of places at which U.C. students chose to hang-out, there existed an elite group of carefully selected locations that have become known as "Hot Spots." These were the places that were spoken of most when the ever-present question of "where?" came up.

Some of these places have always been U.C. favorites, while others have just become "hot" this past year. Whatever the case may be, all of these places will undeniably be in the U.C. scene for years down the line. As Powerstation says ... "Some like it HOT!"

Classy Display

Ring! 10:10 a.m. "Why is the bell ringing now?" asks one sophomore. "It must be a fire drill," suggests another. "Why are all those people going to the gym?" several wanted to know. To the sophomores it would be the first of many pep rallies. To the upper classmen, well, at least class was shorter.

This year, however, was different. Under the leadership of ASB President Mike Nemeth, the UC students showed a great deal of enthusiasm. As in years before, the cheerleaders put together a variety of nifty cheers and a pyramid, not to mention a few songs/skits such as the "Twelve Days of Practice." This song aroused applause and laughter from the crowd as the cheerleaders taught the crowd football rules like "Please catch the ball" and "Don't scratch your head!" The announcing of football captain Paul Macrenato led a string of captains from each varsity sport. In addition to the varsity and j.v. cheerleaders, the debuting Drill Team performed courageously in front of a full house. All in all, it was a classy display.

As the pep rally dwindled down to its final minutes, the student body anxiously awaited the class cheer. The noise grew louder and louder as each class participated in what was the final event of a fun, and well planned pep rally.

"Hey, that was cool!" yells a sophomore. "I guess we proved who is the best!" boasts a junior. "Seniors still rule," warns a senior. The enthusiasm flowed slowly out of the gym only to reunite at the next pep rally.

A New Twist To A Classic

Skunks, wolves, rabbits, bears and woodcutters all came out of the woods for the sixth annual dance production. With the classic children's story "Little Red Riding Hood" as a theme, the dancers performed to such numbers as "Peter Gunn", "Hungry Like A Wolf", and "Word Up". The routines, which included tap, ballet, jazz and modern numbers, were incorporated into the storyline with the help of narration by Leasa Hood.

The dancers came across as poised and well-rehearsed. Costuming enhanced the dances as trees and forest animals moved across the stage with finesse.

According to Ms. Scanlon, the one element which pulled the production together was "the enthusiasm for performing. The dancers have to like what they're doing." It was evident to the audience that they did indeed enjoy being on stage.

For these students, living abroad opened their eyes to other ways of living. It gave them a chance to explore new cultures, make new friends, and become a part of a foreign family.

The exchange works both ways. This year, our school hosted Kenneth Rafkin from Finland, Carl Hedman of Sweden, and Marcelo Brandao from Brazil. Kathrin Schrickel and Boris Hohl visited from Germany. Any of these students will claim that seeing a new country is truly a "classic experience!"

SPEAK OUT

All Class Barbeque

"Gee," smiles Gina Bulacan, "Coke Classic does taste better than the New Coke!"

Despite the low attendance, this year's September all school barbeque was an enjoyable afternoon. Those who went had a variety of food to choose from which included hamburgers, chips, potato salad, and drinks — all for a bargain price of three dollars. There were people tossing footballs and frisbees while others relaxed on lawn chairs enjoying a cheerful picnic atmosphere. The highlight of the affair was the live band The Tall. The beat of the modern day songs plus the rapping of Brad Ledwith did an excellent job of keeping the spirit of the barbeque alive. Although the barbeque might of been done too early in the year, it was an event that got the school enthusiastic for the game.

"One, two three, ... hit it," says Mike Weaver as he directs the band to start the barbeque entertainment.

Student Perspectives

"A chance to work with a group of people and produce a product the entire school can enjoy" is what producer, Glen Galaich, enjoyed most about student perspective. Student perspective was exactly what the name suggested. Interested students took the video production class and created a show representing students' views.

This year's show featured a series entitled "Where Is Mary?" In these segments, Mary Mathis reported on students' favorite locations around San Diego County. Also on every episode, a different question was asked the students and the best answers were aired on the show. The stories contained in each episode were chosen by the students of the class. Ms. Cathy Mullins, the advisor, only advised on what to do and what not to do. "To gain valuable experience in the television field" is what Glen benefitted most from being a part of student perspective.

Miracle On Stage

The cast was professional, the set well-crafted and the costumes authentic, but there was more to it. There was something else that pulled the whole drama production together. Ms. Brown called it "dedication" and it was apparent in the Winter Production of The Miracle Worker, the story of Helen Keller.

The play depicted the struggles Helen Keller, a blind, deaf, and mute girl, had to face in the deep south in 1887.

The director, Ms. Brown, stated, "I'm really pleased. It was a difficult show, a challenge to put on," but the actors successfully pulled it off. She contributed the success to the "dedication of the actors and their willingness to expand their roles and go deeper."

With a relatively small cast, the actors had to focus on their roles more completely than in previous years. This meant mastering the characters' Southern dialect and maintaining it throughout the play. The actors persevered and were successful.

The closeness the cast achieved and their dedication to the performance was evident on stage. They helped bring The Miracle Worker to life and make it a success. The Winter Drama production proved to be a true "Miracle" on stage.

Class Acts

This year's airband contest was an experience you had to see to believe! With the price of admission being a can of food or 50¢ that went to needy San Diegan families, the contest was a huge success according to Pat Saeger, Commissioner of Activities.

Acts this year ranged from Stryper to All of Us did an airband of themselves. Other bands included: Donut Runz a.k.a. Huey Lewis and the News with Brian Capezzone, Rick Dieterle, Cory Heyman, Rick Lunde, Mike Perry, and Paulo Valladouid; U2 via Sean Dreilinger, Mark Fish, Brent Stickles, and Glen Galach; Cheryl Rooney, Yuki Kidokoro, and Doris Kang as Craftwork; Bob and Doug McKenzie alias Jamie Scarafone and Tony Miller; and Neshell Gregory and Janet Jackson.

This year, all of the bands were judged together instead of day by day as in previous years. The four winners were announced on Friday, December 9th, after four days of grueling competition: The Bangles/ "Walk Like An Egyptian"; Run D.M.C./"Proud To Be Black"; Diane Sheehan and her gang/"The Homecoming Queen"; and the Bee Gees/ "Stayin' Alive".

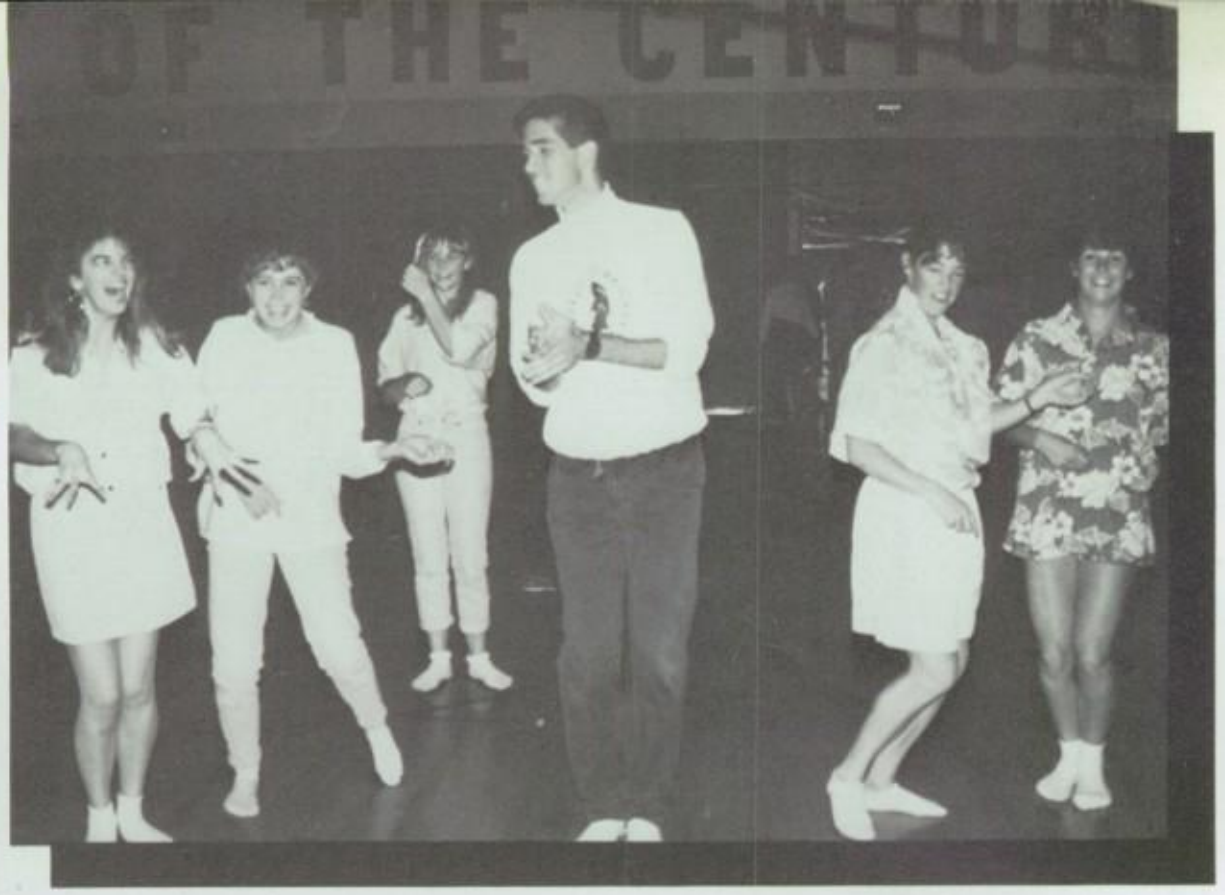
Brad Ledwith, Dave Hustosky, and Rich Guerra are "Proud To Be Black" as Run D.M.C.

Leasa Hood, Heidi Hugli, Wendy Borsari, Elissa Stachelek, and Lisa Bennett perform "Walk Like An Egyptian" by the Bangles.

Kim Koustmer takes careful aim in the "Homecoming Queen's Got A Gun".

Pat Saeger, Brian Andrews, and Chris Ransom are the Bee Gees.

Music As You Like It



The ever popular "Twist and Shout" blared throughout the gym. Students danced in different styles, not only just twisting. Each person had one thing in common when he or she attended a school dance. Each had the desire to dance and have good time. "The dances bring friends together in a fun atmosphere," said senior Susie Scheffel.

The dance on Friday, March 13, was sponsored by the senior class. Unfortunately, the dance was small due to lack of senior participation. The number of people attending informal dances dropped this year, but is most likely to increase in upcoming years. It was not the quantity, but the quality that mattered. Rick Dieterle said, "The D.J. was hot. I think if people had known how good the music was going to be, more people would have come. Everyone who did go had fun."

The kids who did arrive at the March 13 dance enjoyed jamming to the tunes of Music As You Like It. The theme of the dance was "Rock of the Ages," featuring songs from the fifties to the eighties. Previous D.J.s that were at U.C. High's dances were Mid-City Productions and West Coast Video. Music As You Like It seemed to be U.C. High's favorite.

Airband finalists burst into action hearing Robert Palmer.

Seniors Kelly Morgan, Rachel Rigoli, and Sheila Aberin get tangled up in the excitement.

Dave Bridges urges Allen Peller to ask his dream girl for a dance.

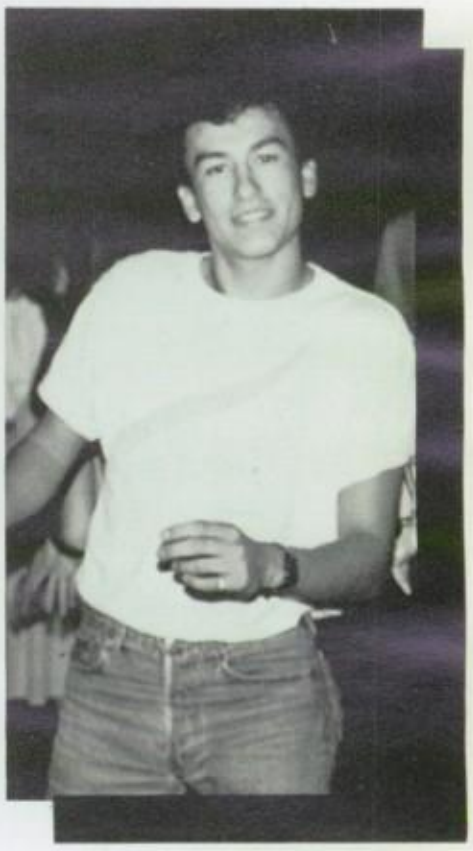
Dave Hustosky, Brad Ledwith, and Blair Hall fight for their right to party.

Jose Mercado rocks back through the ages with the Beach Boys.



A Touch of Friendship: Tory Shuffleton and Yoko Shirai

A Touch of Satisfaction: Lisa Baer

A Touch of Ambition: Robert Gearing

Vermin got up at five A.M., slouched to the bathroom and gargled. He combed his hair down flat against his head, put on his red shorts (the ones with the grape juice on the back), and his green "Pardy Hardy" T-shirt. After a short breakfast of figs, he strapped his backpack on and headed off to G.H.S. (Generic High School).

Just above the main door was a sign (written mostly in yellow so that it was hard to read) which said "Game Today."

"Game, indeed," thought Vermin. Today was the day of the big game, the one they'd been waiting for. The U.C.H.S. Centurions were coming.

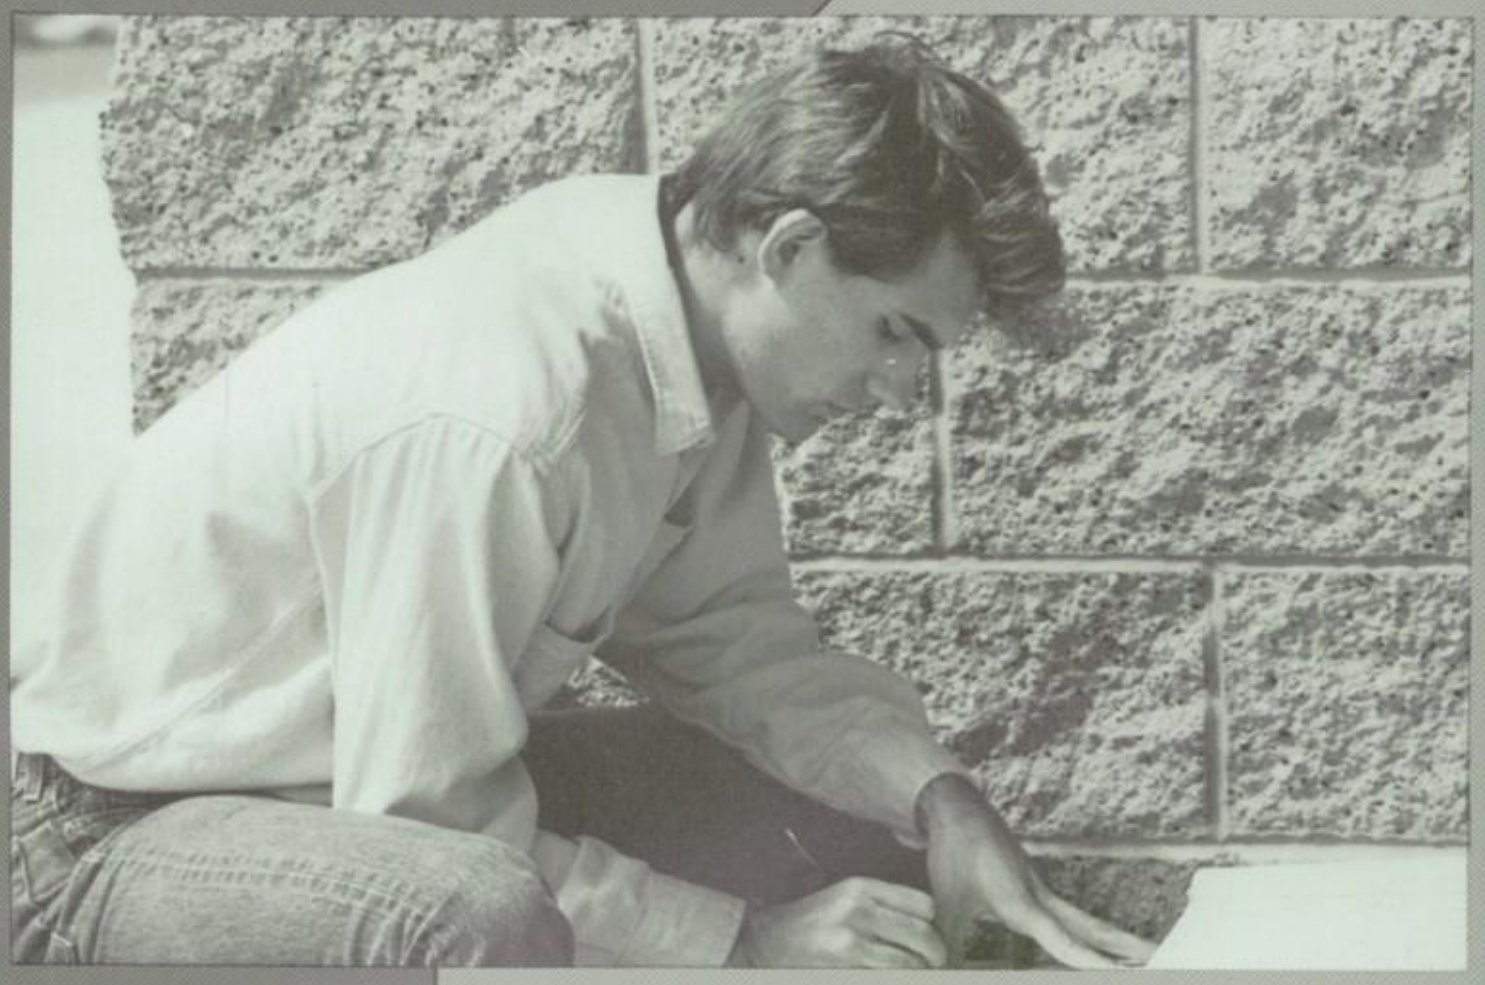
The day went on as usual with one exception, the pep rally. It was a weak rally, only about half the student body showed up and those that were there made no noise. The cheerleaders tried to fire everyone up but their pyramid fell over and all the "hair" fell out of their pom-pons.

Class president, Leland Phlegmthrod, gave a speech; "My . . . ah, fellow students. Oops . . . Oh yeah . . . welcome to the pep ral-"; but the speakers gave out and no one could hear him.

About thirty-two people, one of which was Vermin, came to the "big game" after school. No noise came from the stands.

A Touch of Spirit: Joanne Copes

A Touch of Independence: Sean Dreilinger



A Touch of Diligence: Paul Bench

A Touch of Royalty: Jamie Scarafone

A Touch of Inquiry: Tracy Kuczenski

Suddenly, Vermin, who sat by himself, thought he heard a buzz, then a rumble. A feeling of excitement came over him as the sound grew louder and nearer. Everyone else could feel it too. They began to stare at the gate at the far end of the field. The sound grew louder and the excitement encreased until a flood of people came pouring through the gate. It was U.C.

The game was a slaughter. Afterwards the beaten G.H.S. Hyenas lay on the grass and hyperventilated.

Vermin watched the ecstatic U.C.H.S. crowd flow out of the stands and down to their busses. Victory was theirs, excitement was theirs, and style was theirs. He knew now what U.C.H.S. had that his school did not. It had a certain flair and elegance. It had a touch of class.

A Touch of Togetherness: Detra Blackshire, Tiffany Pless, Tina Southern, Brian Thomas and Kimberly Warren

A Touch of Silliness: Tracy Jones and Leslie Young

Yo Larry,
What's happenin big Larry? I've heard you are one hell of a lineman and I hope you live up to expectations! You are a very good friend and if you ever need any help in school or on the football team don't be afraid to ask. O.K. Be sure to Pump Iron over the summer and if you're not doing anything give me a call.

Your friend,

Brad "cubby" Lehrita
